U.N. Forces Extend Hold; Reds Disappear; Diplomats Weigh Decision on China

40,000,000 to Decide Congressional Rule

Dewey Starts Marathon Finale

With the clock marking 6 a. m. (EST), Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York begins an 18-hour television-radio campaign in bid for reelection. Gov. Dewey started his marathon campaign talkfest with an attack on the China and Korea policies of the Truman administration. Dewey also said he would answer questions telephoned to the studios and 50 special phones were installed to receive the calls.

Close Balloting Is Expected in Many States in Nation

By JACK BELL
(A.P. Political Reporter)

With the nation treading uneasy ground somewhere between war and peace, 40,000,000 or more voters decide today whether Democrats or Republicans will control Congress in the two critical years ahead.

Signs pointed to close races in many of the states choosing 36 senators, 432 House members and 32 governors.

Maine elected a Republican governor and three House members in September. Heavy party majorities in southern and border states assured the Democrats of a nest egg of more than 100 House seats in practically uncontested elections.

With fair weather in sight for most of the nation, Republican leaders joined President Truman and other Democrats in urging a heavy turnout at the polls.

Help From Confusion

Republicans counted on last-hour voter reaction to the confused Korean war situation to help provide the impetus for the ballot surge they seemed to need to gain a net of seven seats in the Senate and 49 in the House for control of Congress.

Senator Knowland (R.-Calif.) voiced one GOP viewpoint with a demand on Secretary of State Acheson yesterday for acceptance of a Chinese Nationalist offer—made in July—of 33,000 ground troops to fight the Communists in Korea.

Asserting that Chinese Communists had invaded Korea to battle United Nations forces, Knowland said there no longer was any reason to bar the Nationalists on

Dewey 'Talkathon' Makes Political History in State

About 40,000 Are Watching Polls

City Sends 19,000 Police to Districts in Bitter New York Voting

New York, Nov. 7 (AP)—New York city's hometown "garrison" of 19,000 police went on special duty at 4 o'clock this morning to forestall any violence in the bitterest election here in years.

The big uniformed force was aided by several thousand more civilians pressed into special service to prevent election fraud.

There were 4,000 official poll watchers ordered out by Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, 1,400 special deputy attorney generals, approximately 12,000 party poll watchers, hundreds of agents from the five district attorneys' offices, and an expanded staff of the Honest Ballot Association.

The extra precautions stemmed mainly from the bitter four-way mayor's race.

Added tension came from the presence of three New York city men in the major state races—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, up for reelection; his rival, U. S. Rep. Walter A. Lynch, and U. S. Senator Herbert H. Lehman.

An extra heavy vote—estimate up to 2,600,000—was expected in the city. Registrations totalled 2,806,448.

Weather Is Sunny

Generally sunny weather was predicted.

Polling hours were 6 a. m. to 7 p. m.

The fierce mayor's race went right down to the wire last night with all four candidates campaigning full blast.

They are Acting Mayor Vincent R. Impellitteri, a Democrat running as an independent; Ferdinand Pecora, Democrat-Liberal; Edward Corsi, Republican, and Paul Ross, American Labor.

The campaign, exceptional for its intemperate language featured charges of political corruption, racketeering and chicanery.

Predicts His Victory

Impellitteri predicted he would win by 500,000 votes as he and his wife voted a few minutes after the polls opened.

His election has been predicted by the New York Daily News on the basis of a city-wide poll in which 15,000 straw votes were cast.

Impellitteri stepped up from president of the city council to acting mayor this fall when William O'Dwyer resigned as mayor to become ambassador to Mexico.

In a class by itself, however, was the fight in the 18th Congressional District—a segment of teeming Spanish Harlem where the Republican-Democratic-Liberal coalition candidate, James

Governor Gets 8,000 Phone Calls; Lynch Refuses Bid for Debate

New York, Nov. 7 (AP)—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey fought his reelection campaign down to the final moment last night in an 18-hour television-radio "talkathon" that may make political history.

He was on and off the air from 6 a. m. to midnight for a total of five and one-half hours of broadcasting. The program blanketed the state and drew more than 8,000 telephone calls.

Dewey ran his own show like an easy-talking political disc jockey, wearing professional tan television makeup, and soliciting questions with no holds barred.

There was no music, but lots of action and more talk.

Handled Phone Himself

Part of the time Dewey handled the telephone himself, giving his callers the word first-hand. But mostly he was in front of the TV camera and microphone, answering the thousands of questions that poured in by phone from all parts of the state and from mobile television cameras on city streets. His aides said about half the questions were about the difficulties in Korea.

A battery of 50 volunteer telephone answerers took the calls,

Two Are Injured At Hercules Plant

Mrs. Ann Langendorf, 150 Spring street, and Mrs. Evelyn Sheffel of Ruby, were injured Monday afternoon at Hercules Powder Company plant, Port Ewen, when a basket of caps exploded about 4:45 o'clock. The Conner Ambulance Service was summoned and the two women were transferred to the Kingston Hospital.

Mrs. Landendorf suffered burns about the back. The extent of Mrs. Sheffel's injuries was not disclosed. At the Kingston Hospital today their condition was reported as "fairly good."

Dewey, Hanley, Wicks Are Victors In School Polls

Governor Thomas E. Dewey, Lieutenant Governor Joe R. Hanley and Senator Arthur H. Wicks were straw vote victors this morning at Kingston High School and Myron J. Michael School.

The vote at the high school: Dewey, 980; Lynch, 496; Hanley, 1036; Lehman, 553; Wicks, 1001; Callahan, 397.

The M. J. M. School balloting was as follows: City pupils, Dewey, 358; Lynch, 149; Hanley, 292; Lehman, 208; Wicks, 387, Callahan, 109. County residents, Dewey, 99; Lynch, 19; Hanley, 85; Lehman, 33; Wicks, 103; Callahan, 15. In the 1949 and 1950 balloting at this school Senator Lehman polled 42 per cent of the total vote.

Council Has 24 Hours for Its Ruling

Third World War Is Held Inevitable if Russia Supports Her Peiping Ally

Facts Are Missing

Chinese Commitment, Red Attitude Are Puzzles for U.N.

Lake Success, Nov. 7 (AP)—United Nation's diplomats conferred today on how to handle General MacArthur's charges that Communist China has sent her troops into Korea.

They have only 24 hours to make one of the most significant decisions in the history of the world organization. The Security Council meets in emergency session tomorrow morning to consider the charges.

There was the fear that World War 3 might erupt if they label the Chinese Reds aggressors and authorize U.N. military action to combat them. Such a war seemed inevitable if Russia supported her ally—the Communist government in Peiping.

On the other hand was the knowledge that the world looked to the U.N. to take a clear-cut stand opposing aggression.

Diplomats Puzzled

Diplomats, in the face of these alternatives, were puzzled. Two basic facts which could decisively sway their decisions were missing:

1. How deeply committed Red China is to the Korean war.

2. What Moscow's attitude would be in case of a war involving the United Nations against Communist China.

They sought a resolution to present to the Security Council, fulfilling the U.N.'s anti-aggression aims and yet not leading directly to an irrevocable war commitment.

Responsible diplomatic circles said last night that western diplomats currently favor a restatement of the U.N.'s order for all states to refrain from giving aid to the North Koreans, without mentioning China by name.

Only Reference to China

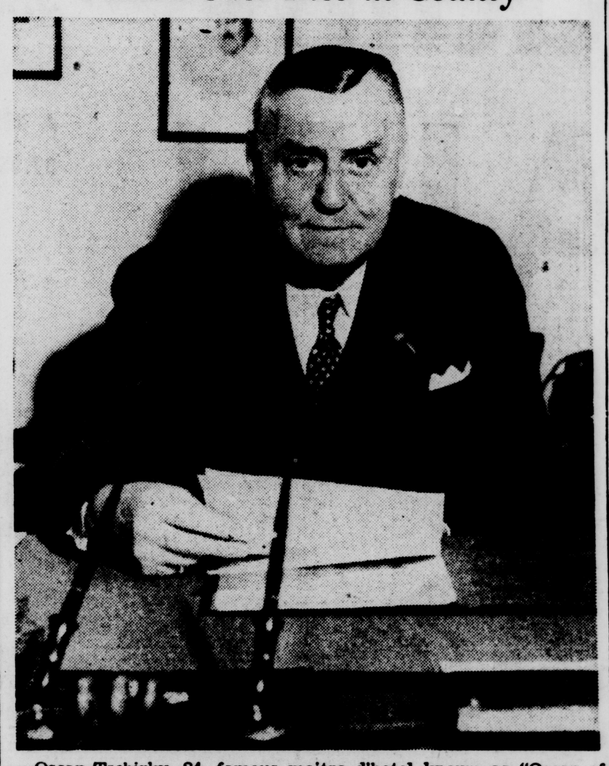

Such a resolution as its only reference to China, would say, that it "took into account" the latest report from Gen. MacArthur about Chinese intervention. It also would contain a clause reemphasizing U.N. determination to remove its troops from Korea as soon as possible.

Western governments, it is understood, are making every effort to avoid putting Red China into a position where she would either be forced into open war or forced to acknowledge a retreat. They want to help Peiping "save face" now to prevent all out war later.

The American position is said to be that real intervention is already a matter of record, but that it may be possible to get the Oscar Tschirky, 84, internationally famous maitre d'hotel known as "Oscar of the Waldorf," died last night at his home in New Paltz, where he had lived 40 years.

He had retired from his position in 1943 after having served the first Waldorf-Astoria at 34th street and Fifth avenue and the new one on Park avenue.

Tschirky, who first joined the Waldorf-Astoria in 1893, became widely known to many national and international figures.

Born in Switzerland

Born in Switzerland, Tschirky learned his trade first as a busboy, waiter, a pastry student in France and then as a caterer and service manager. He was associated with New York hotels and restaurants from the time of his immigration to this country in 1883.

His graciousness to guests—to whom he habitually extended personal greetings—won him a wide reputation. He hovered over important dinners with alert and painstaking care.

Sino Fight Is Lessened Against U.S.

Resistance Gains in One Area Near Pungsan as North Koreans Hit U. S. Patrol

Weather Is Bitter

Fighting Is Waged in Zero Weather Near Manchuria

Seoul, Nov. 7 (AP)—United Nations forces expanded their slim bridgehead north of the Chongchon river today as some Communists mysteriously withdrew on the Northwest Korean warfront.

Two U. S. 24th Division regiments and the British Commonwealth Brigade moved ahead two and one-fourth miles after a heavy air bombing in the Pakchon area northwest of the bridgehead at Anju. There was little opposition on this front although Red concentrations had applied heavy pressure as late as Monday.

U. S. propellor-driven Mustang fighters routed speedier Russian-built jets in an 85-minute air battle—longest of the war—over Sinuiju just across the Yalu river from Manchuria. Three of the Red jets were reported hit. Spokesmen said no U. S. planes were lost.

In the north-central sector, Chinese Red resistance eased suddenly in front of U. S. Marines driving through frigid mountain passes toward the Changjin Reservoir.

Moves Almost Mile

The marines lead off Seventh Regiment, virtually stalled four days by the stiff Red Chinese defense, moved almost a mile up a twisting river gorge and seized a towering 4,000 foot ridge. This was the dominating point south of the reservoir, 36 miles northwest of Hamhung.

But Communist resistance mounted in one northeast sector.

A U. S. Seventh Division combat patrol north of Pungsan reported it was under attack "by a hell of a lot of North Koreans."

The patrol was on the north bank of the Ungi river. Carrier-based marine Corsairs flew in to give air support.

This was the first serious opposition in three days for the division's 17th Regimental Combat Team. It is driving north in zero weather within less than 30 miles of the Manchurian border.

In the Pakchon area advance, Australian units on the left flank met the only notable resistance when they routed 100 Red soldiers.

Allied warplanes began burning all villages to flush out Chinese Red soldiers.

Change of Clothes

U. S. First Cavalry Division troops reported they had seen Chinese troops change into civilian clothing and loll around in villages during the day while allied planes buzzed overhead.

Communist dead with reversible uniforms were found in the Anju-Kunu area. The uniforms were grey-green on one side, civilian white on the other.

Eighth Air Force fighter-bombers and light bombers rocketed, strafed and bombed all along the front and as far north as Kanggye, the Reds' frontier command center.

Tokchon, northeast of Anju, was hit hard.

The air force said 600 enemy troops were killed, and two tanks, five artillery pieces, 43 vehicles and six supply buildings destroyed.

Allied Officers Perplexed

Allied officers were perplexed at the Chinese withdrawal in an area where they had forced U. N. troops back as much as 50 miles. They speculated the Chinese either were regrouping for a large-scale attack or were deploying new lines.

In the latter event, officers said, it was possible the Chinese only intended to hold a buffer area guarding the Yalu river hydro-electric power grid, vital to Manchurian industry.

General MacArthur placed the issue of Chinese Red intervention in the Korea war before the United Nations Monday. The United States asked the U. N. Security Council to consider the matter Wednesday morning.

The 85-minute air combat over the northwest corner of Korea pitted U. S. propellor-driven F-51 Mustang Fighters against an un-

Budyenny Asks Sympathy For Struggling Koreans

Moscow, Nov. 7 (AP)—Marshal Semeon Budyenny called on the Soviet people and "other freedom-loving peoples of the world" today to express their sympathy for the Korean people who he said were struggling for their freedom and independence.

Soviet army and navy ministers, in orders of the day to Russian fighting forces on the traditional observance of the 33rd anniversary of the Bolshevik revolution, demanded constant vigilance and combat readiness in view of the situation in Korea.

Budyenny, war hero and member of the Praesidium and Supreme Soviet, reviewed the annual military parade across Red Square from the top of the rain-drenched Lenin tomb.

Huge self-propelled guns and tanks rolled across the Red Square at the climax of the demonstration by all branches of the military services. But the customary air show was cancelled because of fog and drizzle.

Adm. Ivan Stepanovich Yumashev, Soviet navy minister, in a special exhortation last night advised Russian sea forces to be in a state of "combat readiness."

"American and British imperialists are pursuing a policy of instigating a new world war," he declared. "From the threat of war they have gone over to open aggression in Korea."

Marshal Alexander M. Vasilevsky, the U.S.S.R.'s army minister, issued a similar order of the day to Russian ground forces.

Budyenny declared the "Soviet people, together with other freedom-loving peoples of the world brand with shame the American aggressors and express their sympathy for the Korean people who are conducting a heroic struggle for the freedom and independence of their motherland."

Kim Ir Sen, North Korean minister of industry, in a telegram to Prime Minister Stalin published in the Moscow press declared Communist soldiers ultimately will defeat "the plundering hordes of American interventionists."

Truman Votes, Has Nothing to Say on Korean Reverses

Follows Party Line, Casts Ballot for Hennings; Admits Korea Is Peace Threat

Independence, Mo., Nov. 7 (AP)—President Truman, worried by the turn of events in Korea, votes today along with millions of other Americans.

Korea was very much on his mind but he maintained a tight-lipped silence on Chinese Communist troop movements from Manchuria into the battle zone.

"The President," said his press secretary, Charley G. Ross, will have "nothing to say."

But, the Korean situation had the President worried, as was evidenced by his grave long-distance

Sino Fight Is Lessened Against U.S.

Resistance Gains in One Area Near Pungsan as North Koreans Hit U. S. Patrol

Weather Is Bitter

Fighting Is Waged in Zero Weather Near Manchuria

Seoul, Nov. 7 (AP)—United Nations forces expanded their slim bridgehead north of the Chongchon river today as some Communists mysteriously withdrew on the Northwest Korean warfront.

Two U. S. 24th Division regiments and the British Commonwealth Brigade moved ahead two and one-fourth miles after a heavy air bombing in the Pakchon area northwest of the bridgehead at Anju. There was little opposition on this front although Red concentrations had applied heavy pressure as late as Monday.

U. S. propellor-driven Mustang fighters routed speedier Russian-built jets in an 85-minute air battle—longest of the war—over Sinuiju just across the Yalu river from Manchuria. Three of the Red jets were reported hit. Spokesmen said no U. S. planes were lost.

In the north-central sector, Chinese Red resistance eased suddenly in front of U. S. Marines driving through frigid mountain passes toward the Changjin Reservoir.

Moves Almost Mile

The marines lead off Seventh Regiment, virtually stalled four days by the stiff Red Chinese defense, moved almost a mile up a twisting river gorge and seized a towering 4,000 foot ridge. This was the dominating point south of the reservoir, 36 miles northwest of Hamhung.

But Communist resistance mounted in one northeast sector.

A U. S. Seventh Division combat patrol north of Pungsan reported it was under attack "by a hell of a lot of North Koreans."

The patrol was on the north bank of the Ungi river. Carrier-based marine Corsairs flew in to give air support.

This was the first serious opposition in three days for the division's 17th Regimental Combat Team. It is driving north in zero weather within less than 30 miles of the Manchurian border.

In the Pakchon area advance, Australian units on the left flank met the only notable resistance when they routed 100 Red soldiers.

Allied warplanes began burning all villages to flush out Chinese Red soldiers.

Change of Clothes

U. S. First Cavalry Division troops reported they had seen Chinese troops change into civilian clothing and loll around in villages during the day while allied planes buzzed overhead.

Communist dead with reversible uniforms were found in the Anju-Kunu area. The uniforms were grey-green on one side, civilian white on the other.

Eighth Air Force fighter-bombers and light bombers rocketed, strafed and bombed all along the front and as far north as Kanggye, the Reds' frontier command center.

Tokchon, northeast of Anju, was hit hard.

The air force said 600 enemy troops were killed, and two tanks, five artillery pieces, 43 vehicles and six supply buildings destroyed.

Allied Officers Perplexed

Allied officers were perplexed at the Chinese withdrawal in an area where they had forced U. N. troops back as much as 50 miles. They speculated the Chinese either were regrouping for a large-scale attack or were deploying new lines.

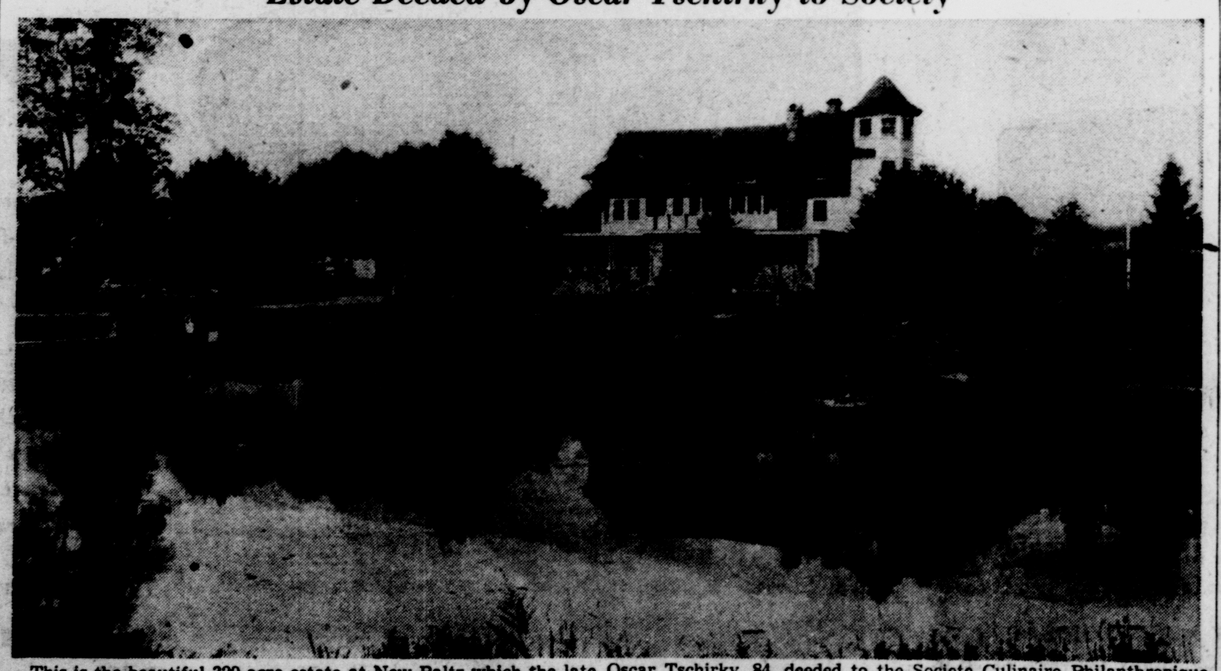

In the latter event, officers said, it was possible the Chinese only intended to hold a buffer area guarding the Yalu river hydro-electric power grid, vital to Manchurian industry.

General MacArthur placed the issue of Chinese Red intervention in the Korea war before the United Nations Monday. The United States asked the U. N. Security Council to consider the matter Wednesday morning.

The 85-minute air combat over the northwest corner of Korea pitted U. S. propellor-driven F-51 Mustang Fighters against an un-

Budyenny Asks Sympathy For Struggling Koreans

Moscow, Nov. 7 (AP)—Marshal Semeon Budyenny called on the Soviet people and "other freedom-loving peoples of the world" today to express their sympathy for the Korean people who he said were struggling for their freedom and independence.

Soviet army and navy ministers, in orders of the day to Russian fighting forces on the traditional observance of the 33rd anniversary of the Bolshevik revolution, demanded constant vigilance and combat readiness in view of the situation in Korea.

Budyenny, war hero and member of the Praesidium and Supreme Soviet, reviewed the annual military parade across Red Square from the top of the rain-drenched Lenin tomb.

Huge self-propelled guns and tanks rolled across the Red Square at the climax of the demonstration by all branches of the military services. But the customary air show was cancelled because of fog and drizzle.

Adm. Ivan Stepanovich Yumashev, Soviet navy minister, in a special exhortation last night advised Russian sea forces to be in a state of "combat readiness."

"American and British imperialists are pursuing a policy of instigating a new world war," he declared. "From the threat of war they have gone over to open aggression in Korea."

Marshal Alexander M. Vasilevsky, the U.S.S.R.'s army minister, issued a similar order of the day to Russian ground forces.

Budyenny declared the "Soviet people, together with other freedom-loving peoples of the world brand with shame the American aggressors and express their sympathy for the Korean people who are conducting a heroic struggle for the freedom and independence of their motherland."

Kim Ir Sen, North Korean minister of industry, in a telegram to Prime Minister Stalin published in the Moscow press declared Communist soldiers ultimately will defeat "the plundering hordes of American interventionists."

Margaret Webster New Stage Manager at Met

New York, Nov. 7 (AP) — The Metropolitan Opera opened its 1950-51 season last night and everybody—the company, the new manager, the music lovers, the celebrity seekers and the celebrities—went away happy.

The company that performed Verdi's "Don Carlo" was pleased by frequent and loud bravos from an audience that seemed more stirred than on most opening nights.

The new manager, Rudolf Bing, must have been happy at the success of innovations—new staging by the Met's first woman stage manager, Margaret Webster; new and handsome sets; new singers who deserved—and got—warm applause.

Bing—and the rest of the management—must have been happy about the receipts for opening night, which were about double those of previous years.

A new arrangement required those who wanted opening night seats to buy seats for three performances, and pay $60 for the three. Last year, single tickets for opening night were only about $10 each.

The marine recruiting station in Poughkeepsie announced today that it has received authority to enlist former marines with the rank of sergeant or below with the rank they held upon discharge. These men, the release said, are not required to go through recruit training again but will be sent directly to Camp LeJuene, N. C., or to the marine air base at Cherry Point, N. C. A marine recruiting sergeant will be at the Kingston post office every Monday to help men who are anxious to join the U. S. Marine Corps.

Cornell Professor Has Mental Health As Local Subject

DR. C. D. DARLING

Dr. C. Douglas Darling, professor of clinical medicine at Cornell University, Ithaca, will be the speaker in the second in the series of mental health meetings for professional workers of this area.

Dr. Darling's topic will be the adolescent and the young adult. He will speak Wednesday at the Governor Clinton Hotel at 8 p. m. The session is a part of the Professional Workers Institute sponsored by the Ulster County Mental Health Committee, a sub-division of the Tuberculosis and Health Association.

In his work at Cornell, Dr. Darling works with students in the field of mental hygiene and psychiatry. He has a B.S. from Lafayette College, Easton, Pa., and an M.D. degree from the University of Pennsylvania Medical School.

Dr. Darling completed internships and residencies at Presbyterian Hospital in Philadelphia and Pennsylvania Hospital. For two years he was resident physician at the George School, Newton, Pa. He is a member of Phi Beta Kappa, the American Psychiatric Association, the New York State Medical Society and the National Committee for Mental Hygiene.

Heads Ford Foundation

New York, Nov. 7 (AP)—Paul G. Hoffman, former head of the Economic Cooperation Administration, was elected yesterday as president of the Ford Foundation with assets of more than $215,000,000. Hoffman, at an annual salary of $75,000, will direct a vast new program to improve the common lot of mankind. Hoffman's election was announced by Henry Ford, 2nd, president of the Ford Motor Company, after a trustees' meeting. The foundation, 14 years old and now the largest of its kind in the nation, recently outlined a program of study of many human problems, including the problem of ending warfare.

THE PRICE-WAGE CHASE

This mad chase of wages after prices and of prices after wages carries serious economic implications. It is especially alarming because its roots are in a vital industry—steel.

The steel workers want time and a half for Saturday work, double time for Sundays and 2 and ½ times regular rates for holidays even though the work done on those days is not in excess of 40 hours a week.

Over against these demands for higher wages is a terrific demand for steel. Most of the steel companies are working at capacity; some of them over this.

Increased taxes, wages, costs of a dozen varieties—all these gang up on the price levels in America and further undermine the integrity of the dollar. As I have said so often in this column, prices are the embodiment of everything that goes on in our economic system. And it is folly to expect prices to stay down when labor demands higher pay, when politicians require greater tax receipts and when general basic costs are rising.

It should be emphasized constantly that this inflationary trend cannot keep going forever. As I wrote here about a year ago, the economic life of America today is like a man walking around on stilts. A good push or a strong gust and where will he be? In the ditch.

Good corporation profits always tend to egg on those whose stockholder interests are dead or nearly so. Today the role of the saver who made possible the life of a high-wage-paying corporation is a minor one. His voice is weak and carries little conviction.

These words of caution should be heeded especially by all stockholders interested in building up their capital accounts. Of course, all investors should have well-thought-through plans of capital management.

Any investor, for example, who is worth $10,000 should be interested in capital accumulation. And during these inflationary-inspired and prosperous times he should take profits. Anyone who sells on the top of a market is usually just plain lucky.

Stocks, furthermore, may be vehicles of investment on a score of levels. One investor with a one hundred per cent profit in a $50 stock may be a logical seller because his aim is capital appreciation. His best friend, on the other hand, may be a local buyer of the same stock because his aim is dependable income.

When the stock averages get up their present price levels, it is highly imperative that all investors and speculators examine carefully their aims. It is no time, in my opinion, for the average thousand dollar investor to buy an inflationary common stock, regardless of how it may later go because of careless speculation.

The situation in the steel industry points up this entire condition. Prices chasing wages and wages chasing prices: it is an unhealthy condition. Nobody shows how it will be resolved eventually. My guess is that some deflation will set in.

Inflationary prosperity carries a pile of economic airholes. Sometimes it is like a stack of cards. Buying power shot through with demand and supply forces of ephemeral in character can collapse overnight. And prices and wages and costs in a rising spiral set up such buying power.

I have just moved eight blocks in New York city. Despite the competition in this line of work, I could get no firm bid for my moving job. So I picked the longest-established mover. He said the job would cost a maximum of $200. Well, it cost twice that. His excuses and explanations were endless.

That is what is going on everywhere. Wages are chasing prices and prices, wages. Can it continue? Of couse not. The thing to remember is that investors should avoid, so far as is possible, getting involved too deeply in this situation.

Refregier Places Second

Tulsa, Okla., Nov. 7 (AP)—Fred Conway of Webster Groves, Mo., head of the art department of Washington University, St. Louis, today was chosen to paint a 70x14-foot mural on the lobby wall of the First National Bank and Trust Co. building. His selection made him the winner of the bank's $25,000 mural competition, in which originally 10 artists were entered. The field was cut to four who were invited to submit sketches of their proposed murals. Later it narrowed to Conway and Anton Refregier, Woodstock, N. Y. The finalists will receive $1,500.

Instructor Is Slain

New York, Nov. 7 (AP)—A 30-year-old Harvard graduate and college instructor was found naked and stabbed to death on his bed this morning in a mid-Manhattan apartment. Police identified him as Karl T. Ohl, a mathematics instructor and tutor who had been teaching at a small New Jersey college. Ohl, lying with his head under a pillow, had been stabbed 14 times in the chest and neck. Police took his roommate, Herbert Landau, a 55-year-old portrait artist, to a precinct station for questioning.

THE PRICE-WAGE CHASE

This mad chase of wages after prices and of prices after wages carries serious economic implications. It is especially alarming because its roots are in a vital industry—steel.

The steel workers want time and a half for Saturday work, double time for Sundays and 2 and ½ times regular rates for holidays even though the work done on those days is not in excess of 40 hours a week.

Over against these demands for higher wages is a terrific demand for steel. Most of the steel companies are working at capacity; some of them over this.

Increased taxes, wages, costs of a dozen varieties—all these gang up on the price levels in America and further undermine the integrity of the dollar. As I have said so often in this column, prices are the embodiment of everything that goes on in our economic system. And it is folly to expect prices to stay down when labor demands higher pay, when politicians require greater tax receipts and when general basic costs are rising.

It should be emphasized constantly that this inflationary trend cannot keep going forever. As I wrote here about a year ago, the economic life of America today is like a man walking around on stilts. A good push or a strong gust and where will he be? In the ditch.

Good corporation profits always tend to egg on those whose stockholder interests are dead or nearly so. Today the role of the saver who made possible the life of a high-wage-paying corporation is a minor one. His voice is weak and carries little conviction.

These words of caution should be heeded especially by all stockholders interested in building up their capital accounts. Of course, all investors should have well-thought-through plans of capital management.

Any investor, for example, who is worth $10,000 should be interested in capital accumulation. And during these inflationary-inspired and prosperous times he should take profits. Anyone who sells on the top of a market is usually just plain lucky.

Stocks, furthermore, may be vehicles of investment on a score of levels. One investor with a one hundred per cent profit in a $50 stock may be a logical seller because his aim is capital appreciation. His best friend, on the other hand, may be a local buyer of the same stock because his aim is dependable income.

When the stock averages get up their present price levels, it is highly imperative that all investors and speculators examine carefully their aims. It is no time, in my opinion, for the average thousand dollar investor to buy an inflationary common stock, regardless of how it may later go because of careless speculation.

The situation in the steel industry points up this entire condition. Prices chasing wages and wages chasing prices: it is an unhealthy condition. Nobody shows how it will be resolved eventually. My guess is that some deflation will set in.

Inflationary prosperity carries a pile of economic airholes. Sometimes it is like a stack of cards. Buying power shot through with demand and supply forces of ephemeral in character can collapse overnight. And prices and wages and costs in a rising spiral set up such buying power.

I have just moved eight blocks in New York city. Despite the competition in this line of work, I could get no firm bid for my moving job. So I picked the longest-established mover. He said the job would cost a maximum of $200. Well, it cost twice that. His excuses and explanations were endless.

That is what is going on everywhere. Wages are chasing prices and prices, wages. Can it continue? Of couse not. The thing to remember is that investors should avoid, so far as is possible, getting involved too deeply in this situation.

Refregier Places Second

Tulsa, Okla., Nov. 7 (AP)—Fred Conway of Webster Groves, Mo., head of the art department of Washington University, St. Louis, today was chosen to paint a 70x14-foot mural on the lobby wall of the First National Bank and Trust Co. building. His selection made him the winner of the bank's $25,000 mural competition, in which originally 10 artists were entered. The field was cut to four who were invited to submit sketches of their proposed murals. Later it narrowed to Conway and Anton Refregier, Woodstock, N. Y. The finalists will receive $1,500.

Instructor Is Slain

New York, Nov. 7 (AP)—A 30-year-old Harvard graduate and college instructor was found naked and stabbed to death on his bed this morning in a mid-Manhattan apartment. Police identified him as Karl T. Ohl, a mathematics instructor and tutor who had been teaching at a small New Jersey college. Ohl, lying with his head under a pillow, had been stabbed 14 times in the chest and neck. Police took his roommate, Herbert Landau, a 55-year-old portrait artist, to a precinct station for questioning.

Merry-Go-Round Burns

Dallas, Nov. 7 (AP)—Oh, the merry-go-round burned down — at state fair park yesterday. And it was the only one of its kind in the world, said co-owner R. J. Stinnett. He said $50,000 wouldn't cover its loss. Stinnnett said it was the last of three original hand-carved merry-go-rounds.

ASIATIC ATTACK ON U. S.

About a month ago at a place called Lucknow in India an international conference of Asiatics, Americans, British and Canadians was held. It deserves more attention than it got.

Probably the most striking thing about this meeting was the bitterness shown by Indian and Pakistani delegates toward the United States. Reports of their vehement criticisms are still filtering back.

Charges were made, for example, that the U. S. puts no value on Asiatic life, because it dropped atomic bombs on Japan in 1945 and more recently bombed North Korean cities.

At another point, Indians asked why this country didn't just go ahead and "give Russia the warm water port she needs."

If many Indians think this way it becomes clearer why Prime Minister Nehru has so frequently seemed to be giving a boost to Russian communism at the expense of the West.

No one needs to be reminded how large India and Pakistan bulk in the Asiatic picture. If we are to have sound, lasting relations with the Far Eastern nations, we must find a basis for understanding with these people. We must be willing to accept criticism and to mold policy in a way that fits the Asiatics' nature.

But this same responsibility is upon them. The impassioned charges delivered against us at Lucknow go far beyond understandable resentment at the long suppression of Asiatic liberties under western colonial regimes. The Indians and Pakistani are blindly flailing at America to excuse their own shortcomings.

They want the U. S. to "prove itself" by being steadily on the side of social progress. We can't complain about this. But they've got a lot to do for themselves socially and economically before they can fairly lay the blame for their troubles at our door.

They also want American economic aid extended with no strings attached. They're fully justified in not wanting help which would simply benefit foreign investors; they had enough of that kind of aid before.

But we have a perfect right to ask for assurances that any aid granted will achieve the desired objective. We must know our money is being well spent, for the world situation compels us to hand out so much in so many different areas that we can't afford to toss it freely down a well.

Thus far the Asiatics have been slow to admit that in their concentration upon getting liberty they have generally failed to prepare for the responsibilities that go with liberty. To expect us to hand money unquestioningly to often inept and sometimes corrupt politicians is unreasoning and unfair.

Only fierce, blinding emotion could lead these Asiatics to suggest that we appease Russia by offering her warm water ports (or anything else). Only a similar frenzy could make them say we value Asiatic life cheaply.

In war, all life is cheap. Did the French say we valued European life cheaply because we bombed Nazi-held French cities in World War II? The offense is not the bombing of cities, with A-bombs or any other. It's in starting wars. One may fairly ask the Indians: "What started World War II? And who invaded South Korea?"

It's all very well for Asiatics to remind us of our own failings. We need to hear it. But they'd better begin looking for the answers to many of their own problems.

MEETING DIFFICULTY

Musicians and other artists are expected more frequently to be temperamental than to be philosophical. Such extraneous sounds as train whistles are famous as the bane of performances in locations not as quiet as might be wished. In Oklahoma City, where an orchestra presents weekly outdoor concerts through the pleasant weather in a park within whistle-shot of the Santa Fe tracks, listeners came to expect two interruptions in each concert, on a schedule coinciding with that of the Santa Fe. The musicians would simply lay down their instruments and wait for the train to pass.

Then one night came a surprise. When came the train, the orchestra departed from its music of the moment; but not to wait in silence. It swung into the booming strains of "The Atchinson, Topeka and Santa Fe," a rousing popular tune of a few years back which includes the effects of train whistles and bells.

Someone is always finding a new use for this bit of philosophy, which is good but requires great care in its application: If you can't lick 'em, join 'em.

'These Days'

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

THERE'S NO BETTER WAY

This election has astounded many Americans by its filth, its lies, its abuses of the amenities of decent living. The battle of the letters in New York was ugly beyond words. The villification of Bob Taft in Ohio reminded me of the speeches of Goebbels. And so it has gone through the country.

Also some candidates proclaimed their fitness to deal with great public issues by playing the mandolin, guitar and ukulele and by singing barber shop quartets. The vice president articulated his wisdom by kissing gals, which may have some freudian if not political signficance. Even old Harold Ickes came out of his lair to speak his unusually dull and often meaningless cuts at those whom he dislikes slightly more than he dislikes most.

Yet, this election is superior to any other device developed to test the will of a people. Any human process will develop flaws, but this election is free, secret, and final. The government supervises it but does not control it. The citizen is not bound to declare his vote, nor is his decision subject to control or review. He goes into a voting booth alone, with only God as his witness. No one can ever know how any other person voted.

The candidates, on the whole, reflect the character of the people. If there is vulgarity in our elections, it is not to be denied that there is vulgarity in our lives. A nation that prefers juke-boxes to Beethoven is like that and we have to weigh these against other elements that compose our national character. Certainly, it is better to be represented by a neighbor than to be ruled by the appointee of a dictator or an oligarch.

It was suggested that in the wonderful city of New York, where so many wise men dwell, the candidates for mayor, for years, have been pedestrian personalities. My friend wanted to know why somebody like John D. Rockefeller, Jr., or Charles E. Wilson or some such great financer or business man did not run.

Well, they probably would not fit the mood of our people. Many businessmen went to work for the New Deal and some of them proved to be among the worst duds. Many of these men overdid their newly adopted roles of liberals and actually became the most oppressive of bureaucrats. Perhaps the application of efficient operations to the gentle art of ruling caused them to forget that in a free socity, government survives by bending to the wind.

The totalitarians are extraordinarily efficient but they permit none of the margins of error which are inherent in freedom.

For instance, take such a matter as priorities. That means that the government takes some right or privilege or goods or services from one citizen and gives it to another. The government says that B is more important than A, and that therefore B is to be permitted to have steel but not A. Naturally, A is sore. He asks himself: In a free society, are not all citizens equal in the eyes of the government?

So, either he votes against the administration in power or he goes into the grey or black market and does the best he can. 'In a word, as long as he is a free man, he accommodates himself to the circumstances. When these circumstances become unreasonable or unbearable to enough people, they change the administration.

If most citizens do not vote to change the administration, they must be regarded as more or less satisfied. For instance, nobody thinks that Harry Truman is any great shakes, but enough voted for him to re-elect him. It might be suggested that those who voted that way were stupid, but that cannot be, the real answer being that they were sufficiently comfortable with Harry Truman not to vote against him.

This system is infinitely more satisfactory than government by revolution or by self-perpetuation. Stalin's crowd came to power in 1917 and have held it since by murder. Hitler's crowd came in about the same time as Roosevelt and were only driven out by defeat in war. Here we have elections and we have done no worse than the countries that do it by murder and assassination.

We can, if we really want to, throw the rascals out any time enough of us choose. Which rascals? Does it really matter?

INFLUENZAL MENINGITIS

I have written before of two men who were admitted to our base hospital during the flu epidemic of 1918, both suffering with influenza. Both left our hospital one week later, one fully recovered from his influenza, the other dead from influenzal meningitis.

I regret to state that nearly all our patients suffering with influenzal meningitis (inflammation of the meninges—the three coats or coverings of the brain and spinal cord) died. This, of course, was before the days of the sulfa drugs, penicillin, and streptomycin.

In The Journal of the American Medical Association, Drs. Emanuel Appelbaum and Jack Nelson, New York, N. Y., state that before the advent of chemotherapy (treatment by sulfa drugs, penicillin, streptomycin, which kill harmful organisms), the death rate in influenzal meningitis varied from 90 to 100 per cent. Today, the death rate has been greatly reduced because of this newer method of treatment. Drs. Appelbaum and Nelson present the reports of 90 cases of this formerly practically fatal disease.

After showing that diagnosis was correct, these physicians state that the duration of the illness, before treatment with streptomycin, varied from one day to five weeks. Sixty-three of the 90 patients were treated within the first eight days of illness. In 16 cases the treatment was delayed for two weeks or longer. In addition to streptomycin, sulfadiazine was used in all but one of the cases, the special drug (rabbit serum) was administered to 17 patients and aureomycin to one patient.

"In this series of 90 cases, there were 87 recoveries and 3 deaths, a recovery rate of over 96 per cent. In the great majority of cases there was a marked improvement within six days after streptomycin treatment started." Not only did this large percentage of patients recover by the treatment with streptomycin and sulfadiazine, but the reactions to these drugs were few and mild. Fortunately, also, despite the delay of more than eight days, there was no increase in the number of reactions due to these drugs.

When we think of the death rate before streptomycin and sulfadiazine treatment was known, there is naturally real cause for thankfulness.

"Yoo Hoo-oo---Anybody Home?"

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Washington—One of the unwritten and unknown incidents of the Wake Island conference is what General Harry Vaughan said to General Douglas MacArthur, who once fired him.

In the early stages of the war, Vaughan, then a colonel, was provost marshal in Brisbane, Australia, when MacArthur yanked him out of the job and sent him back to the U.S.A.

Perhaps this was a lucky break for Vaughan since he then attached himself to the Truman committee, later became aide to the vice president (though most vice presidents don't have aides) and now basks at the feet of the mighty.

However, there has been no love lost between Vaughan and MacArthur since, and apparently President Truman was quite aware of this on the Wake Island flight.

While playing poker en route home, the bemedaled military aide raked in a couple of good pots at Truman's expense, and the President finally got a little peeved.

"Clip me again, you so-and-so," he snapped, "and I'll ship you back to General MacArthur for keeps."

Split Personality

Every so often, President Truman drops a remark indicating that he considers himself a split personality—that there is a difference between Harry Truman, the poker-playing ex-haberdasher and Harry Truman, the President of the United States.

Apparently he feels that he can draw a sort of curtain on his official daytime duties and lapse into another personality at night when he relaxes with Harry Vaughan and General Wallace Graham over bourbon and branchwater.

A clue regarding this split personality accidentally dropped the other day when Mr. Truman was talking to a senatorial friend who had come to urge that he confer with Stalin.

The President listened attentively as the senator urged that no one wants war and that Russia by this time knows we mean business and will not be bullied. "Why don't you arrange to meet Stalin at some neutral place like Berlin or Teheran?" the senator urged.

That familiar stubborn look immediately blazed in Truman's eyes.

"Let him come to Washington," he said indignantly. "It's time that so-and-so showed some respect for the United States. I'm tired of being treated like Harry Truman instead of the President of the United States. If he has anything to say to me, he can come here."

Stassen to Moscow

Senator Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota was campaigning in that state shortly after his fellow Minnesotan Harold Stassen had proposed that he go to Moscow to confer with Stalin. With Humphrey was Orville Freeman and Congressman John Blatnik, who asked:

"I wonder what would happen, Hubert, if you or I wrote a letter to Stalin suggesting that we come to Moscow for a conference. The press would go wild denouncing us. But it's all right if Stassen does it."

"They'd even go wild if Secretary Acheson or President Truman did it," concluded Humphrey.

That conversation may have inspired Humphrey to get off the following punch line in a speech that night.

"One day Stassen gets up and shouts 'send the atom bomb to Moscow,'" proclaimed Humphrey, "next day he's back with 'hold the bomb—send Harold Stassen to Moscow!'"

Campaign Funds

Latest tabulation of political contributions filed with the clerk of the House of Representatives shows some interesting donations. Here are some of them: Tom Watson, head of International Business Machines, is hedging his bets. Though he is Eisenhower's biggest backstage backer, he also put up $2,000 for the Democrats this trip. . . . Biggest GOP contributor, as usual, was the du Pont family of Delaware with $16,000 placed in the Republican kitty. . . . Biggest Democratic source of revenue were the Jackson Day dinners. The Washington, D. C., dinner raised $305,000. . . . Other big Democratic contributors were Woodrow Wilson's ambassador to Germany, James W. Gerard, and his wife, $10,000; Averell Harriman, $5,000; Henry Morgenthau, $5,000; the Hollywood Schencks (Nic, Joe and Pansy) $8,000; Marshall Field, $2,000; Sam Goldwyn, $1,000; Robert Young of the Chesapeake and Ohio (a Republican), $1,000 and "Call Me Madam" Perle Mesta, U. S. minister to Luxembourg, $1,000.

Mrs. Roosevelt gave $100 to the Democratic party, but only three cabinet members are registered as contributors so far—postmaster General Donaldson, $200; Secretary of State Acheson, $500; Secretary of Commerce Sawyer, $1,000. . . . White House aide Steve Spingarn, recently elevated to the Federal Trade Commission, gave $1,000; and so did Stanley Dollar of San Francisco, a Republican, now suing the U. S. government to recover the Dollar Steamship Line. Significantly he gave to the Democrats.

Big Republican contributors were: Robert E. Wood of Sears-Roebuck, former head of America First, $1,500; Sewell Avery, head of Montgomery Ward, who once got carried out of his office by U. S. troops, $1,500; John A. Hartford, head of the A. & P. grocery stores who faces a big anti-trust suit, $3,000; and three big Chicago meat packers, a total of $4,200; E. A. Cudahy, Thomas E. Wilson and the Swift family. . . . C. K. Boettcher, the Denver financier, came through with $1,000 for the GOP; Erskine R. Myer, another Denverite, $2,000; the Pittsburgh Mellon family of Gulf Oil and the Aluminum Corporation, $2,000; and Jack Chrysler of the automobile family, $1,000. . . . Other Republican contributors of $1,000 each were Roger Strauss, the New York financier, and great friend of Tom Dewey's; Mrs. Jacob France of Baltimore, whose husband was once Senator from Maryland; and Mrs. Worthington Scranton, of Scranton, Pa.

The Dems collected $1,000 each from George Lucky, the California cattle rancher; ex-Ambassador Joe Davies; Mrs. Stanley Woodward, whose husband got the prize post of ambassador to Canada; David K. E. Bruce, the American Ambassador to France; and Morris Cafritz, the big Washington real estate dealer. (In the last election Morris and his wife bet on the Republicans to the tune of $2,000). . . . Another interesting $1,000 contributor to the Dems was Milton Kronheim, the big liquor dealer and great friend of General Vaughan's whose son has been made a municipal judge (incidentally donig a good job). . . . Hollywood singer Phil Reegan and his wife gave the Dems $3,500 though he usually consorts with the Republicans; while Rosalie Bloomingdale of the New York department store and Angier Biddle Duke of the American Embassy in Buenos Aires each put up $3,000 to the Democrats.

Sawyer Raises Question Regarding When Extra Steel Need Will Arise in Nation

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Nov. 7—Everybody would like to have more steel at this time—but will the demand continue, and is there a justification for a 120,000,000-ton annual capacity?

This very question has been tackled openly for the first time by the secretary of commerce, Charles Sawyer, who raises the pertinent issue as to when the extra capacity is needed.

Mr. Sawyer revealed that the nation can have a 120,000,000-ton capacity by 1954 and 110,000,000-ton by 1952 if the present commitment for expansion by 4,000,000 extra tonnage annually is maintained. On this all-important problem, which directly or indirectly affects defense production as well as manufacturing in many lines of business, the secretary disclosed quite informally the crux of the difficulty as he responded to a question-and-answer interview in "U. S. News & World Report," copyrighted by that weekly magazine. He said:

"I want to make it very clear that I am on the side of those who believe strongly that we should have an increase in steel capacity. As a matter of fact, the day William Henry Harrison was sworn in as administrator of the National Production Authority, I had called in the steel people and asked them to give me a statement as to what they were prepared to do in the way of increasing their steel capacity. As a result of that, they did give me a commitment of 9,400,000 tons by the end of 1952.

"There's been some comment that that wasn't enough. It is not enough for the future. However, some people fail to take into consideration an important element—the element of time. They say we ought to have a capacity of 120,000,000 tons, but they don't say 'when.'

"It's proper to point out that if this increase in capacity of over 4,000,000 tons a year—and I think it will be even greater than indicated—if that's maintained, in five years we'll have 120,000,000 tons' capacity. In other words, we're to have 110,000,000 by the end of 1952. So for those who say question is when? Do you want us to have 120,000,000 at the end of 1952 or do you want it at the end of 1954? If we're to get 120,000,000 at the end of 1952, we must face the problem, first, as to what disruption will occur to our present process, and also whether, if we have that capacity, we will have an equal supply of manganese or ore boats—other things that go into the final process of making steel. I don't want the Commerce Department to be under any imputation of trying to hold down capacity when our desire is exactly the opposite."

The dilemma, to be sure, isn't a bit different than it has been all along whenever the question of expansion of steel capacity has been raised by the government. How much steel shall be used up in making new plants and how much manpower can be subtracted from regular requirements in order to build the expanding plants? It's a case of not being able to have the cake and eat it, too.

Much more fundamental is the question of the impact on the economy for years to come. If a 120,000,000-ton capacity is to be the normal maximum instead of 90,000,000, as it was until recent years, then what happens when capacity is idle and yet interest and other charges must be met on sums borrowed to pay the prevailing high costs of construction? To build a plant today costs ever so much more than it did a decade ago. Yet the price of steel cannot be brought down materially if demand falls because there must be some way to cover the costs of the expanded plants.

The issues raised by idle capacity are brushed aside by some government officials as emanating from fear of recession—as if American producers must become Pollyannas and never think about the possibility of a drop in steel capacity. Unfortunately, those with a responsibility to creditors who have furnished borrowed money for bond issues or to stockholders for their equity money want to know that there is some solicitude about building excess capacity which in some future time will become idle.

How long will the war emergency last? How long will the inflation be maintained? And how long will automobile production be unrestricted? All these questions, if answered, could have a bearing on whether America in some years will see its steel plants with a demand of only 72,000,000 tons and an idle capacity of 48,000,000 tons. That's about a 60 per cent operating ratio—which would be far below the break-even point for many companies.

Shokan, Nov. 6—Charles Cole was numbered among the Kingston business men calling in the hub of the reservoir country recently.

The 1.48-inch rainfall of Friday and Saturday started local brooks to running again and pepped up the feeble flow of water in shallow wells and some springs. The rain was a great help of course, though in the opinion of one old timer "we could have stood a coupla days more of it."

Q—Do dogs really go mad?

A—That dogs "go mad" is pure superstition. Another supersition is that mad dogs dread water. This mistaken belief arises from the fact that the word hydrophobia literally means "water fear." The truth is a rabid dog craves water, but is unable to drink because of constriction about the throat.

ASIATIC ATTACK ON U. S.

About a month ago at a place called Lucknow in India an international conference of Asiatics, Americans, British and Canadians was held. It deserves more attention than it got.

Probably the most striking thing about this meeting was the bitterness shown by Indian and Pakistani delegates toward the United States. Reports of their vehement criticisms are still filtering back.

Charges were made, for example, that the U. S. puts no value on Asiatic life, because it dropped atomic bombs on Japan in 1945 and more recently bombed North Korean cities.

At another point, Indians asked why this country didn't just go ahead and "give Russia the warm water port she needs."

If many Indians think this way it becomes clearer why Prime Minister Nehru has so frequently seemed to be giving a boost to Russian communism at the expense of the West.

No one needs to be reminded how large India and Pakistan bulk in the Asiatic picture. If we are to have sound, lasting relations with the Far Eastern nations, we must find a basis for understanding with these people. We must be willing to accept criticism and to mold policy in a way that fits the Asiatics' nature.

But this same responsibility is upon them. The impassioned charges delivered against us at Lucknow go far beyond understandable resentment at the long suppression of Asiatic liberties under western colonial regimes. The Indians and Pakistani are blindly flailing at America to excuse their own shortcomings.

They want the U. S. to "prove itself" by being steadily on the side of social progress. We can't complain about this. But they've got a lot to do for themselves socially and economically before they can fairly lay the blame for their troubles at our door.

They also want American economic aid extended with no strings attached. They're fully justified in not wanting help which would simply benefit foreign investors; they had enough of that kind of aid before.

But we have a perfect right to ask for assurances that any aid granted will achieve the desired objective. We must know our money is being well spent, for the world situation compels us to hand out so much in so many different areas that we can't afford to toss it freely down a well.

Thus far the Asiatics have been slow to admit that in their concentration upon getting liberty they have generally failed to prepare for the responsibilities that go with liberty. To expect us to hand money unquestioningly to often inept and sometimes corrupt politicians is unreasoning and unfair.

Only fierce, blinding emotion could lead these Asiatics to suggest that we appease Russia by offering her warm water ports (or anything else). Only a similar frenzy could make them say we value Asiatic life cheaply.

In war, all life is cheap. Did the French say we valued European life cheaply because we bombed Nazi-held French cities in World War II? The offense is not the bombing of cities, with A-bombs or any other. It's in starting wars. One may fairly ask the Indians: "What started World War II? And who invaded South Korea?"

It's all very well for Asiatics to remind us of our own failings. We need to hear it. But they'd better begin looking for the answers to many of their own problems.

MEETING DIFFICULTY

Musicians and other artists are expected more frequently to be temperamental than to be philosophical. Such extraneous sounds as train whistles are famous as the bane of performances in locations not as quiet as might be wished. In Oklahoma City, where an orchestra presents weekly outdoor concerts through the pleasant weather in a park within whistle-shot of the Santa Fe tracks, listeners came to expect two interruptions in each concert, on a schedule coinciding with that of the Santa Fe. The musicians would simply lay down their instruments and wait for the train to pass.

Then one night came a surprise. When came the train, the orchestra departed from its music of the moment, but not to wait in silence. It swung into the booming strains of "The Atchinson, Topeka and Santa Fe," a rousing popular tune of a few years back which includes the effects of train whistles and bells.

Someone is always finding a new use for this bit of philosophy, which is good but requires great care in its application: If you can't lick 'em, join 'em.

'These Days'

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

THERE'S NO BETTER WAY

This election has astounded many Americans by its filth, its lies, its abuses of the amenities of decent living. The battle of the letters in New York was ugly beyond words. The villification of Bob Taft in Ohio reminded me of the speeches of Goebbels. And so it has gone through the country.

Also some candidates proclaimed their fitness to deal with great public issues by playing the mandolin, guitar and ukulele and by singing barber shop quartets. The vice president articulated his wisdom by kissing gals, which may have some freudian if not political signficance. Even old Harold Ickes came out of his lair to speak his unusually dull and often meaningless cuts at those whom he dislikes slightly more than he dislikes most.

Yet, this election is superior to any other device developed to test the will of a people. Any human process will develop flaws, but this election is free, secret, and final. The government supervises it but does not control it. The citizen is not bound to declare his vote, nor is his decision subject to control or review. He goes into a voting booth alone, with only God as his witness. No one can ever know how any other person voted.

The candidates, on the whole, reflect the character of the people. If there is vulgarity in our elections, it is not to be denied that there is vulgarity in our lives. A nation that prefers juke-boxes to Beethoven is like that and we have to weigh these against other elements that compose our national character. Certainly, it is better to be represented by a neighbor than to be ruled by the appointee of a dictator or an oligarch.

It was suggested that in the wonderful city of New York, where so many wise men dwell, the candidates for mayor, for years, have been pedestrian personalities. My friend wanted to know why somebody like John D. Rockefeller, Jr., or Charles E. Wilson or some such great financer or business man did not run.

Well, they probably would not fit the mood of our people. Many businessmen went to work for the New Deal and some of them proved to be among the worst duds. Many of these men overdid their newly adopted roles of liberals and actually became the most oppressive of bureaucrats. Perhaps the application of efficient operations to the gentle art of ruling caused them to forget that in a free socity, government survives by bending to the wind.

The totalitarians are extraordinarily efficient but they permit none of the margins of error which are inherent in freedom.

For instance, take such a matter as priorities. That means that the government takes some right or privilege or goods or services from one citizen and gives it to another. The government says that B is more important than A, and that therefore B is to be permitted to have steel but not A. Naturally, A is sore. He asks himself: In a free society, are not all citizens equal in the eyes of the government?

So, either he votes against the administration in power or he goes into the grey or black market and does the best he can. In a word, as long as he is a free man, he accommodates himself to the circumstances. When these circumstances become unreasonable or unbearable to enough people, they change the administration.

If most citizens do not vote to change the administration, they must be regarded as more or less satisfied. For instance, nobody thinks that Harry Truman is any great shakes, but enough voted for him to re-elect him. It might be suggested that those who voted that way were stupid, but that cannot be, the real answer being that they were sufficiently comfortable with Harry Truman not to vote against him.

This system is infinitely more satisfactory than government by revolution or by self-perpetuation. Stalin's crowd came to power in 1917 and have held it since by murder. Hitler's crowd came in about the same time as Roosevelt and were only driven out by defeat in war. Here we have elections and we have done no worse than the countries that do it by murder and assassination.

We can, if we really want to, throw the rascals out any time enough of us choose. Which rascals? Does it really matter?

INFLUENZAL MENINGITIS

I have written before of two men who were admitted to our base hospital during the flu epidemic of 1918, both suffering with influenza. Both left our hospital one week later, one fully recovered from his influenza, the other dead from influenzal meningitis.

I regret to state that nearly all our patients suffering with influenzal meningitis (inflammation of the meninges—the three coats or coverings of the brain and spinal cord) died. This, of course, was before the days of the sulfa drugs, penicillin, and streptomycin.

In The Journal of the American Medical Association, Drs. Emanuel Appelbaum and Jack Nelson, New York, N. Y., state that before the advent of chemotherapy (treatment by sulfa drugs, penicillin, streptomycin, which kill harmful organisms), the death rate in influenzal meningitis varied from 90 to 100 per cent. Today, the death rate has been greatly reduced because of this newer method of treatment. Drs. Appelbaum and Nelson present the reports of 90 cases of this formerly practically fatal disease.

After showing that diagnosis was correct, these physicians state that the duration of the illness, before treatment with streptomycin, varied from one day to five weeks. Sixty-three of the 90 patients were treated within the first eight days of illness. In 16 cases the treatment was delayed for two weeks or longer. In addition to streptomycin, sulfadiazine was used in all but one of the cases, the special drug (rabbit serum) was administered to 17 patients and aureomycin to one patient.

"In this series of 90 cases, there were 87 recoveries and 3 deaths, a recovery rate of over 96 per cent. In the great majority of cases there was a marked improvement within six days after streptomycin treatment started." Not only did this large percentage of patients recover by the treatment with streptomycin and sulfadiazine, but the reactions to these drugs were few and mild. Fortunately, also, despite the delay of more than eight days, there was no increase in the number of reactions due to these drugs.

When we think of the death rate before streptomycin and sulfadiazine treatment was known, there is naturally real cause for thankfulness.

"Yoo Hoo-oo---Anybody Home?"

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Washington—One of the unwritten and unknown incidents of the Wake Island conference is what General Harry Vaughan said to General Douglas MacArthur, who once fired him.

In the early stages of the war, Vaughan, then a colonel, was provost marshal in Brisbane, Australia, when MacArthur yanked him out of the job and sent him back to the U.S.A.

Perhaps this was a lucky break for Vaughan since he then attached himself to the Truman committee, later became aide to the vice president (though most vice presidents don't have aides) and now basks at the feet of the mighty.

However, there has been no love lost between Vaughan and MacArthur since, and apparently President Truman was quite aware of this on the Wake Island flight.

While playing poker en route home, the bemedaled military aide raked in a couple of good pots at Truman's expense, and the President finally got a little peeved.

"Clip me again, you so-and-so," he snapped, "and I'll ship you back to General MacArthur for keeps."

Split Personality

Every so often, President Truman drops a remark indicating that he considers himself a split personality—that there is a difference between Harry Truman, the poker-playing ex-haberdasher and Harry Truman, the President of the United States.

Apparently he feels that he can draw a sort of curtain on his official daytime duties and lapse into another personality at night when he relaxes with Harry Vaughan and General Wallace Graham over bourbon and branchwater.

A clue regarding this split personality accidentally dropped the other day when Mr. Truman was talking to a senatorial friend who had come to urge that he confer with Stalin.

The President listened attentively as the senator urged that no one wants war and that Russia by this time knows we mean business and will not be bullied. "Why don't you arrange to meet Stalin at some neutral place like Berlin or Teheran?" the senator urged.

That familiar stubborn look immediately blazed in Truman's eyes.

"Let him come to Washington," he said indignantly. "It's time that so-and-so showed some respect for the United States. I'm tired of being treated like Harry Truman instead of the President of the United States. If he has anything to say to me, he can come here."

Stassen to Moscow

Senator Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota was campaigning in that state shortly after his fellow Minnesotan Harold Stassen had proposed that he go to Moscow to confer with Stalin. With Humphrey was Orville Freeman and Congressman John Blatnik, who asked:

"I wonder what would happen, Hubert, if you or I wrote a letter to Stalin suggesting that we come to Moscow for a conference. The press would go wild denouncing us. But it's all right if Stassen does it."

"They'd even go wild if Secretary Acheson or President Truman did it," concluded Humphrey.

That conversation may have inspired Humphrey to get off the following punch line in a speech that night.

"One day Stassen gets up and shouts 'send the atom bomb to Moscow,'" proclaimed Humphrey, "next day he's back with 'hold the bomb—send Harold Stassen to Moscow!'"

Campaign Funds

Latest tabulation of political contributions filed with the clerk of the House of Representatives shows some interesting donations. Here are some of them: Tom Watson, head of International Business Machines, is hedging his bets. Though he is Eisenhower's biggest backstage backer, he also put up $2,000 for the Democrats this trip. . . . Biggest GOP contributor, as usual, was the du Pont family of Delaware with $16,000 placed in the Republican kitty. . . . Biggest Democratic source of revenue were the Jackson Day dinners. The Washington, D. C., dinner raised $305,000. . . . Other big Democratic contributors were Woodrow Wilson's ambassador to Germany, James W. Gerard, and his wife, $10,000; Averell Harriman, $5,000; Henry Morgenthau, $5,000; the Hollywood Schencks (Nic, Joe and Pansy) $8,000; Marshall Field, $2,000; Sam Goldwyn, $1,000; Robert Young of the Chesapeake and Ohio (a Republican), $1,000 and "Call Me Madam" Perle Mesta, U. S. minister to Luxembourg, $1,000.

Mrs. Roosevelt gave $100 to the Democratic party, but only three cabinet members are registered as contributors so far—postmaster General Donaldson, $200; Secretary of State Acheson, $500; Secretary of Commerce Sawyer, $1,000. . . . White House aide Steve Spingarn, recently elevated to the Federal Trade Commission, gave $1,000; and so did Stanley Dollar of San Francisco, a Republican, now suing the U. S. government to recover the Dollar Steamship Line. Significantly he gave to the Democrats.

Big Republican contributors were: Robert E. Wood of Sears-Roebuck, former head of America First, $1,500; Sewell Avery, head of Montgomery Ward, who once got carried out of his office by U. S. troops, $1,500; John A. Hartford, head of the A. & P. grocery stores who faces a big anti-trust suit, $3,000; and three big Chicago meat packers, a total of $4,200; E. A. Cudahy, Thomas E. Wilson and the Swift family. . . . C. K. Boettcher, the Denver financier, came through with $1,000 for the GOP; Erskine R. Myer, another Denverite, $2,000; the Pittsburgh Mellon family of Gulf Oil and the Aluminum Corporation, $2,000; and Jack Chrysler of the automobile family, $1,000. . . . Other Republican contributors of $1,000 each were Roger Strauss, the New York financier, and great friend of Tom Dewey's; Mrs. Jacob France of Baltimore, whose husband was once Senator from Maryland; and Mrs. Worthington Scranton, of Scranton, Pa.

The Dems collected $1,000 each from George Lucky, the California cattle rancher; ex-Ambassador Joe Davies; Mrs. Stanley Woodward, whose husband got the prize post of ambassador to Canada; David K. E. Bruce, the American Ambassador to France; and Morris Cafritz, the big Washington real estate dealer. (In the last election Morris and his wife bet on the Republicans to the tune of $2,000). . . . Another interesting $1,000 contributor to the Dems was Milton Kronheim, the big liquor dealer and great friend of General Vaughan's whose son has been made a municipal judge (incidentally donig a good job). . . . Hollywood singer Phil Reegan and his wife gave the Dems $3,500 though he usually consorts with the Republicans; while Rosalie Bloomingdale of the New York department store and Angier Biddle Duke of the American Embassy in Buenos Aires each put up $3,000 to the Democrats.

Sawyer Raises Question Regarding When Extra Steel Need Will Arise in Nation

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Nov. 7—Everybody would like to have more steel at this time—but will the demand continue, and is there a justification for a 120,000,000-ton annual capacity?

This very question has been tackled openly for the first time by the secretary of commerce, Charles Sawyer, who raises the pertinent issue as to when the extra capacity is needed.

Mr. Sawyer revealed that the nation can have a 120,000,000-ton capacity by 1954 and 110,000,000-ton by 1952 if the present commitment for expansion by 4,000,000 extra tonnage annually is maintained. On this all-important problem, which directly or indirectly affects defense production as well as manufacturing in many lines of business, the secretary disclosed quite informally the crux of the difficulty as he responded to a question-and-answer interview in "U. S. News & World Report," copyrighted by that weekly magazine. He said:

"I want to make it very clear that I am on the side of those who believe strongly that we should have an increase in steel capacity. As a matter of fact, the day William Henry Harrison was sworn in as administrator of the National Production Authority, I had called in the steel people and asked them to give me a statement as to what they were prepared to do in the way of increasing their steel capacity. As a result of that, they did give me a commitment of 9,400,000 tons by the end of 1952.

"There's been some comment that that wasn't enough. It is not enough for the future. However, some people fail to take into consideration an important element—the element of time. They say we ought to have a capacity of 120,000,000 tons, but they don't say 'when.'

"It's proper to point out that if this increase in capacity of over 4,000,000 tons a year—and I think it will be even greater than indicated—if that's maintained, in five years we'll have 120,000,000 tons' capacity. In other words, we're to have 110,000,000 by the end of 1952. So for those who say question is when? Do you want us to have 120,000,000 at the end of 1952 or do you want it at the end of 1954? If we're to get 120,000,000 at the end of 1952, we must face the problem, first, as to what disruption will occur to our present process, and also whether, if we have that capacity, we will have an equal supply of manganese or ore boats—other things that go into the final process of making steel. I don't want the Commerce Department to be under any imputation of trying to hold down capacity when our desire is exactly the opposite."

The dilemma, to be sure, isn't a bit different than it has been all along whenever the question of expansion of steel capacity has been raised by the government. How much steel shall be used up in making new plants and how much manpower can be subtracted from regular requirements in order to build the expanding plants? It's a case of not being able to have the cake and eat it, too.

Much more fundamental is the question of the impact on the economy for years to come. If a 120,000,000-ton capacity is to be the normal maximum instead of 90,000,000, as it was until recent years, then what happens when capacity is idle and yet interest and other charges must be met on sums borrowed to pay the prevailing high costs of construction? To build a plant today costs ever so much more than it did a decade ago. Yet the price of steel cannot be brought down materially if demand falls because there must be some way to cover the costs of the expanded plants.

The issues raised by idle capacity are brushed aside by some government officials as emanating from fear of recession—as if American producers must become Pollyannas and never think about the possibility of a drop in steel capacity. Unfortunately, those with a responsibility to creditors who have furnished borrowed money for bond issues or to stockholders for their equity money want to know that there is some solicitude about building excess capacity which in some future time will become idle.

How long will the war emergency last? How long will the inflation be maintained? And how long will automobile production be unrestricted? All these questions, if answered, could have a bearing on whether America in some years will see its steel plants with a demand of only 72,000,000 tons and an idle capacity of 48,000,000 tons. That's about a 60 per cent operating ratio—which would be far below the break-even point for many companies.

Will Abide by U.N.

New York, Nov. 7 (AP)—The New York Times today quoted Marshall Tito as saying in an interview that Yugoslavia will abide by United Nations decisions if the fighting in Korea brings a war between the United States and Communist China. Times Correspondent C. L. Sulzberger, in a dispatch from Belgrade, said he asked the Yugoslav premier last night what his country's stand would be should events in Korea result in hostilities between the United States and the Chinese Reds.

Boys Blamed for Fire

Stamford, Conn., Nov. 7 (AP)—Police said today two 10-year-old boys playing with stolen railroad flares and dynamite caps were responsible for the $250,000 fire yesterday at the Diamond Match Company's lumber yard. Detective Sergeant John J. McInerney, who took the boys into custody, said one of them was the son of a Diamond Match Company employe, but he would not otherwise identify them. They were turned over to juvenile court authorities.

Meet in Phone Session

New York, Nov. 7 (AP)—Company and union negotiators were called into session again today in an effort to settle a dispute that threatens a national telephone work stoppage Thursday morning. Conferences yesterday failed to head off the strike. Both sides stuck to their positions on wages, length of contracts and retroactivity, a federal mediator said. The main dispute is between the Western Electric Company and two divisions of the C.I.O. Communications Workers of America (CWA).

Steel Order Readied

Washington, Nov. 7 (AP)—The National Production Authority today got ready to issue a steel distribution order which NPA Administrator William H. Harrison says is the first of its orders having a bearing on the price situation. NPA officials have called the attention of the Economic Stabilization Agency (ESA) to the order, scheduled for issuance today or tomorrow. ESA Administrator Alan Valentine declined to comment on it.

on grounds that their entry into the war would provoke retaliation by the Chinese Reds.

Despite the possible threat of full-scale warfare with the Chinese Communists, President Truman said in a speech in Independence, Mo., that "the common victory against aggression in Korea is evidence that the free nations will not let communism swallow up free peoples one by one."

Will Not Run Out

Earlier in a luncheon talk, the President promised that the United States "never again will run out on its responsibility for preservation of world peace."

The President, after voting in his home precinct in Independence, planned to return to Washington later in the day by plane.

The G.O.P.'s chance of regaining control in today's voting appeared to hinge on the outcome of close races in California, Colorado, Connecticut, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Missouri, New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania and Utah.

Fourteen Senate seats are involved in voting in those states, eight of them now held by Democrats and six by Republicans. A clean sweep would give the G.O.P. one more than it needs for control of the Senate. With some others, the same states could provide the necessary gain in House seats for G.O.P. control of that body.

Secondary Hopes

The Republicans apparently had only secondary hopes of picking up Democratic seats in such states as Kentucky, Maryland, Oklahoma and Washington.

Democrats continued to claim that they not only will turn back the Republicans but will improve their strength in the Senate, where they now outnumber the G.O.P. 54 to 42 and in the House, where the count is 259 Democrats to 169 Republicans, one American-Labor and six vacancies, divided evenly among Republicans and Democrats when last filled.

The Democrats concentrated on attempts to knock off Republican senators in Colorado, Idaho, Indiana, Iowa, Missouri and Ohio.

Governorship races in 13 out of 33 states are counted as close. Of these 13 statehouse posts, seven are now filled by Democrats and six by Republicans. Democrat governors outnumbered Republicans Nov. 29 to 19.

Council Has . . .

Peiping government out of Korea by diplomatic pressure rather than military action.

The U. S. is skeptical of the view, held by some other U.N. members, that Red troops are in Korea merely to guard the border power dams which are vital to Manchurian industry.

The Russians have given no indication what their attitude would be to the suggested resolution. Some western delegates are of the opinion that they would refrain from vetoing a resolution which merely restates a previous position because such a veto would automatically hand the issue over to the veto-free assembly.

Korean Ships to Return

San Diego, Calif., Nov. 7 (AP)—Headed by the aircraft carrier Boxer and two heavy cruisers, the first units of the Pacific Fleet to return from the Korean war zone are scheduled to arrive here and at two other California ports during the next 10 days. The Boxer will arrive at San Francisco Sunday, Nov. 12. The cruisers Helena and Toledo, comprising Cruiser Division 3 will dock at Long Beach tomorrow. The destroyer tender Piedmont is scheduled to arrive at San Diego Friday and the destroyers De Haven, Lyman K. Swenson and Collett will dock here Nov. 17.

Truman Votes, Has

telephone conference yesterday with Secretary of State Acheson.

And he told his townspeople in a major speech that "the threat of Communist aggression is a continuing threat to world peace."

The President casts his ballot today in the Blue Township precinct here around 10:45 a. m. (E.S.T.) before flying back to Washington.

Among those for whom he said he is voting is Thomas C. Hennings, Jr., former representative from St. Louis and now Democratic candidate seeking to unseat Republican Senator Forrest Donnell.

Was Not Choice

Hennings wasn't Mr. Truman's choice in the Democratic primary in August but when Hennings nosed out Emery Allison the President fell in line like the party man that he is.

He even told a luncheon audience yesterday that if he could talk individually to each guest he thought he could persuade everyone of them to vote "the straight Democratic ticket."

That is the way the President says he always has voted and, his mother, Mrs. Martha E. Truman, before him.

The President's mother died at 94. One of her favorite photographs was one taken with her son in 1945.

The President stopped by the public library yesterday for his first view of a portrait based on this photograph.

Sentimental Visit

It was a sentimental visit to the library. But the President was in a sentimental mood.

Earlier during a speech at the Independence Memorial building, he told how he first met Mrs. Truman.

Pointing to the red-bricked Presbyterian church across the street from the Memorial building, he said:

"You know, I went to Sunday school right across there, the first time in my life, a long, long time ago.

"And in that Sunday school class I met a little blue-eyed, golden haired girl—my first sweetheart.

"Her eyes are still blue, but her hair is no longer golden. It's silver—like mine. And she is still my sweetheart."

The President, accepting in behalf of his home town of Independence, a liberty bell donated by the town of Annecy, France, told his townspeople:

The leaders of "Communist imperialism have chosen to follow the path of aggression. Through threats and through the use of force, they are seeking to impose their will upon peoples all over the world.

"So long as they persist in that course, the free nations have one choice if they are to remain free. They must oppose strength with strength."

Donovan, a Democrat, is trying to unseat left-wing Congressman Vito Marcantonio, head of the American Labor Party.

It was in a similar race four years ago that Joseph Scottoriggio, an anti-Marcantonio worker, was beaten to death in a still unsolved Election Day murder.

The huge police turnout was ordered by Impellitteri, who said two weeks ago that he had reports that election violence was in the making.

He ordered his new reform police commissioner, Thomas F. Murphy, to seize all hoodlums and thugs in town. More than 700 suspects have beeen arrested since then, mostly on vagrancy charges.

Dewey 'Talkathon'

classified them, and passed them on to the governor to handle.

To do it, he pulled out and exhibited photos of state building projects, interviewed his advisors and state officials, and even had Mrs. Dewey drop in for a folksy chat.

20 Separate Appearances

Television has been used widely by all the major candidates in the state and city campaigns this year, but never on such a lavish scale. In his 18 hours, Dewey made 20 separate TV appearances, averaging about 15 minutes each.

Dewey broadcast from station WOR.

During one of Dewey's breaks, his Democratic-Liberal rival, Rep. Walter A. Lynch, started broadcasting on his own TV program in another studio.

Dewey listened in and heard Lynch charge him with giving aid and comfort to the "Communist enemy" through his attacks on American foreign policy.

Dewey at once sent word to Lynch, challenging him to a TV debate in front of the Dewey cameras.

Lynch refused, saying "I challenged Gov. Dewey to debate with me at Wall and Broad streets, in the shadow of the Chase National Bank. That's the only place I will meet him."

Dewey snapped back that Lynch was "yellow."

"He didn't dare," Dewey said. "The man has no guts, because he is not telling the truth. He made a charge and ran out, and that proves that he has no integrity ar i courage and is not fit for public office."

Between broadcasting sessions, Dewey drank coffee, ate sandwiches, rested on a couch and had his TV makeup renewed.

His last words, broadcast at midnight, were "I've enjoyed it immensely."

Hanley Will Not Vote

Hudson, N. Y., Nov. 7 (AP)—Joe R. Hanley, Republican candidate for U. S. senator, won't be able to vote today — but he'll be going home from the hospital in a day or two. The 74-year-old lieutenant-governor entered the hospital here a week ago, suffering from exhaustion after months of campaigning. His physician advised him to remain in the hospital a few more days and avoid the excitement of going to Perry, in western New York, to vote.

Will Abide by U.N.

New York, Nov. 7 (AP) — The New York Times today quoted Marshall Tito as saying in an interview that Yugoslavia will abide by United Nations decisions if the fighting in Korea brings a war between the United States and Communist China. Times Correspondent C. L. Sulzberger, in a dispatch from Belgrade, said he asked the Yugoslav premier last night what his country's stand would be should events in Korea result in hostilities between the United States and the Chinese Reds.

Boys Blamed for Fire

Stamford, Conn., Nov. 7 (AP)—Police said today two 10-year-old boys playing with stolen railroad flares and dynamite caps were responsible for the $250,000 fire yesterday at the Diamond Match Company's lumber yard. Detective Sergeant John J. McInerney, who took the boys into custody, said one of them was the son of a Diamond Match Company employe, but he would not otherwise identify them. They were turned over to juvenile court authorities.

Meet in Phone Session

New York, Nov. 7 (AP)—Company and union negotiators were called into session again today in an effort to settle a dispute that threatens a national telephone work stoppage Thursday morning. Conferences yesterday failed to head off the strike. Both sides stuck to their positions on wages, length of contracts and retroactivity, a federal mediator said. The main dispute is between the Western Electric Company and two divisions of the C.I.O. Communications Workers of America (CWA).

Steel Order Readied

Washington, Nov. 7 (AP)—The National Production Authority today got ready to issue a steel distribution order which NPA Administrator William H. Harrison says is the first of its orders having a bearing on the price situation. NPA officials have called the attention of the Economic Stabilization Agency (ESA) to the order, scheduled for issuance today or tomorrow. ESA Administrator Alan Valentine declined to comment on it.

on grounds that their entry into the war would provoke retaliation by the Chinese Reds.

Despite the possible threat of full-scale warfare with the Chinese Communists, President Truman said in a speech in Independence, Mo., that "the common victory against aggression in Korea is evidence that the free nations will not let communism swallow up free peoples one by one."

Will Not Run Out

Earlier in a luncheon talk, the President promised that the United States "never again will run out on its responsibility for preservation of world peace."

The President, after voting in his home precinct in Independence, planned to return to Washington later in the day by plane.

The G.O.P.'s chance of regaining control in today's voting appeared to hinge on the outcome of close races in California, Colorado, Connecticut, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Missouri, New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania and Utah.

Fourteen Senate seats are involved in voting in those states, eight of them now held by Democrats and six by Republicans. A clean sweep would give the G.O.P. one more than it needs for control of the Senate. With some others, the same states could provide the necessary gain in House seats for G.O.P. control of that body.

Secondary Hopes

The Republicans apparently had only secondary hopes of picking up Democratic seats in such states as Kentucky, Maryland, Oklahoma and Washington.

Democrats continued to claim that they not only will turn back the Republicans but will improve their strength in the Senate, where they now outnumber the G.O.P. 54 to 42 and in the House, where the count is 259 Democrats to 169 Republicans, one American-Labor and six vacancies, divided evenly among Republicans and Democrats when last filled.

The Democrats concentrated on attempts to knock off Republican senators in Colorado, Idaho, Indiana, Iowa, Missouri and Ohio.

Governorship races in 13 out of 33 states are counted as close. Of these 13 statehouse posts, seven are now filled by Democrats and six by Republicans. Democrat governors outnumbered Republicans Nov. 29 to 19.

Council Has . . .

Peiping government out of Korea by diplomatic pressure rather than military action.

The U. S. is skeptical of the view, held by some other U.N. members, that Red troops are in Korea merely to guard the border power dams which are vital to Manchurian industry.

The Russians have given no indication what their attitude would be to the suggested resolution. Some western delegates are of the opinion that they would refrain from vetoing a resolution which merely restates a previous position because such a veto would automatically hand the issue over to the veto-free assembly.

Korean Ships to Return

San Diego, Calif., Nov. 7 (AP)—Headed by the aircraft carrier Boxer and two heavy cruisers, the first units of the Pacific Fleet to return from the Korean war zone are scheduled to arrive here and at two other California ports during the next 10 days. The Boxer will arrive at San Francisco Sunday, Nov. 12. The cruisers Helena and Toledo, comprising Cruiser Division 3 will dock at Long Beach tomorrow. The destroyer tender Piedmont is scheduled to arrive at San Diego Friday and the destroyers De Haven, Lyman K. Swenson and Collett will dock here Nov. 17.

Truman Votes, Has

telephone conference yesterday with Secretary of State Acheson.

And he told his townspeople in a major speech that "the threat of Communist aggression is a continuing threat to world peace."

The President casts his ballot today in the Blue Township precinct here around 10:45 a. m. (E.S.T.) before flying back to Washington.

Among those for whom he said he is voting is Thomas C. Hennings, Jr., former representative from St. Louis and now Democratic candidate seeking to unseat Republican Senator Forrest Donnell.

Was Not Choice

Hennings wasn't Mr. Truman's choice in the Democratic primary in August but when Hennings nosed out Emery Allison the President fell in line like the party man that he is.

He even told a luncheon audience yesterday that if he could talk individually to each guest he thought he could persuade everyone of them to vote "the straight Democratic ticket."

That is the way the President says he always has voted and, his mother, Mrs. Martha E. Truman, before him.

The President's mother died at 94. One of her favorite photographs was one taken with her son in 1945.

The President stopped by the public library yesterday for his first view of a portrait based on this photograph.

Sentimental Visit

It was a sentimental visit to the library. But the President was in a sentimental mood.

Earlier during a speech at the Independence Memorial building, he told how he first met Mrs. Truman.

Pointing to the red-bricked Presbyterian church across the street from the Memorial building, he said:

"You know, I went to Sunday school right across there, the first time in my life, a long, long time ago.

"And in that Sunday school class I met a little blue-eyed, golden haired girl—my first sweetheart.

"Her eyes are still blue, but her hair is no longer golden. It's silver—like mine. And she is still my sweetheart."

The President, accepting in behalf of his home town of Independence, a liberty bell donated by the town of Annecy, France, told his townspeople:

The leaders of "Communist imperialism have chosen to follow the path of aggression. Through threats and through the use of force, they are seeking to impose their will upon peoples all over the world.

"So long as they persist in that course, the free nations have one choice if they are to remain free. They must oppose strength with strength."

Donovan, a Democrat, is trying to unseat left-wing Congressman Vito Marcantonio, head of the American Labor Party.

It was in a similar race four years ago that Joseph Scottoriggio, an anti-Marcantonio worker, was beaten to death in a still unsolved Election Day murder.

The huge police turnout was ordered by Impellitteri, who said two weeks ago that he had reports that election violence was in the making.

He ordered his new reform police commissioner, Thomas F. Murphy, to seize all hoodlums and thugs in town. More than 700 suspects have beeen arrested since then, mostly on vagrancy charges.

Dewey 'Talkathon'

classified them, and passed them on to the governor to handle.

To do it, he pulled out and exhibited photos of state building projects, interviewed his advisors and state officials, and even had Mrs. Dewey drop in for a folksy chat.

20 Separate Appearances

Television has been used widely by all the major candidates in the state and city campaigns this year, but never on such a lavish scale. In his 18 hours, Dewey made 20 separate TV appearances, averaging about 15 minutes each.

Dewey broadcast from station WOR.

During one of Dewey's breaks, his Democratic-Liberal rival, Rep. Walter A. Lynch, started broadcasting on his own TV program in another studio.

Dewey listened in and heard Lynch charge him with giving aid and comfort to the "Communist enemy" through his attacks on American foreign policy.

Dewey at once sent word to Lynch, challenging him to a TV debate in front of the Dewey cameras.

Lynch refused, saying "I challenged Gov. Dewey to debate with me at Wall and Broad streets, in the shadow of the Chase National Bank. That's the only place I will meet him."

Dewey snapped back that Lynch was "yellow."

"He didn't dare," Dewey said. "The man has no gut", because he is not telling the truth. He made a charge and ran out, and that proves that he has no integrity ar i courage and is not fit for public office."

Between broadcasting sessions, Dewey drank coffee, ate sandwiches, rested on a couch and had his TV makeup renewed.

His last words, broadcast at midnight, were "I've enjoyed it immensely."

Miss Truman's Income

(Detroit Free Press)

Miss Margaret Truman says that her income for this season as a singer will be between $60,000 and $75,000.

"I am not, however, interested in the money," she said, "But in my music."

She also remarked that she would like to make some records. We think she has.

Mrs. A—Why are you jealous of your husband's secretary?

Mrs. B—Because I used to be his secretary.

If many more of those peewee automobiles appear on the streets, thrifty councils may get the idea it would be smart business to shorten the distance between parking meters.

NATIONAL LETTER WEEK

If you want to feel must better
Just sit down and write a letter
This is the occasion for letter-writing
You will find it most delighting.
You know what a friendly letter can do
To a person who is a bit blue
Write to a soldier, they like to read
A letter from home they all need.
A letter is a wonderful communication
So inexpensive, it's an inspiration
Just a stamp, paper and envelope
Give somebody a ray of hope
Write a love letter, get in the mood
Do not worry about being sued
Say things you've never said before
In a letter you can say much more.
Send a letter, even to pay a bill
As long as an envelope you do fill
Celebrate Letter-Week, write to the friend
You promised your friendship would never end.

Harold—I can't, ma-he's got it strapped under his chin.

Miss Truman's Income

(Detroit Free Press)

Miss Margaret Truman says that her income for this season as a singer will be between $60,000 and $75,000.

"I am not, however, interested in the money," she said, "But in my music."

She also remarked that she would like to make some records. We think she has.

Lawyer—On what grounds do you want to divorce your husband?

Client—He hit me and closed one of my eyes. It that enough?

Lawyer—Certainly. It's an open and shut case.

The words "no fire" spelled backwards made up the name of a new fire repellent for cotton and rayon fabrics. Wide use of the stance should make it unnecessary to sound the "M-rala."

Mrs. A—Why are you jealous of your husband's secretary?

Mrs. B—Because I used to be his secretary.

News of Our Own Service Folks

VINCENT H. STEELY, JR.

The U. S. Marine Corps recruiting station at the post office, Poughkeepsie, announced this morning the acceptance of Vincent Hugh Steely, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent H. Steely of Rosendale, for three years. He was active in athletics at Kingston High School. He graduated in June, 1949 and received state diploma in regents art. Upon completion of recruit training at Parris Island, South Carolina, he intends to apply for Officers Candidate School at Quantico, Va.

Private Steeley has a cousin serving as a corporal in the marine corps, Joseph A. Steeley, Jr., of Kingston. He is at Camp Lejeune, N. C.

The marine corps office announced that men who are qualified physically and mentally may serve only for the duration if they desire. Further information may be had from the marine recruiting sergeant at the post office in Kingston or Poughkeepsie.

Home Bureau Unit From Lomontville Sees Tumor Clinic

The work of the American Cancer Society in Ulster county, and active interest in the Ulster County Tumor Clinic, prompted 14 members of the Lomontville Home Bureau unit last Thursday to visit the clinic, and learn more of one of the most dreaded diseases of our times.

Mrs. Harry Parker Van Wagenen, executive director of the Ulster county branch of the American Cancer Society received the group and arranged the program. After speaking briefly on the history of the Cancer Society, Mrs. Van Wagenen showed two of their films designed to illustrate and stress the importance of early cancer detection and treatment in relation to good health.

The group also toured the Tumor Clinic while Mrs. Van Wagenen explained the use of many of its rooms, as well as the modern facilities employed in the treatment of tumor and cancer patients.

The tour was arranged for the group by Mrs. Carl Dedy, sponsor of the Lomontville Home Bureau unit, and Mrs. Edwin B. Shumate, Marbletown, chairman of the American Cancer Society's educational program, expressed the hope that other groups would plan a similiar program for their members.

Those visiting the clinic were Mrs. Mark Bryant, Mrs. Anthony Bruntaeger, Mrs. Raymond Elliot, Mrs. Raymond Le Fevre, Mrs. Oscar Kafka, Mrs. Ernest Johnston, Mrs. Frank Altieri, Mrs. Loring Jansen, Mrs. Gordon Eckert, Mrs. Karlton Bowers, Mrs. Walter Vollmeke, Mrs. William Kohler, Mrs. Edwin Shumate, and Mrs. Carl Dedy.

Personal Notes

The Rev. and Mrs. Harold Schaible of the Ponckhockie Congregational Church are the parents of a daughter, Melissa Ann, born November 1 at the Benedictine Hospital. Mrs. Schaible is the former Marion Palen.

Marvin I. Millens, son of Mr. and Mrs. Max Millens, 81 Andrew street, has been initiated into Omega Pi Alpha, social fraternity at Syracuse University.

Betty L. Bryant, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. V. Bryant of Lomontville, as president of the student council, Buffalo State Teachers College, represented the student body at the ceremonies held when Gov. Thomas E. Dewey laid the cornerstone for the college's new Edward H. Butler library. Following the ceremonies Miss Bryant accompanied the governor on an inspection tour of the campus.

Miss Jaqueline Jackson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Jackson, has been elected chairman of Senior Week at Beaver College where she is majoring in biology.

Music Group Hears Beethoven Lecture

A lecture, prepared by Mrs. William Petri and Mrs. Florence Cubberly on the life and work of Ludwig Van Beethoven who, at the age of 11 published his first works, provided ample background material for members of the Music Appreciation Group when they met Thursday at the Y.W.C.A.

Many of the famous composer's recordings were also played, followed by an explanation of the content, form, and style of each work which had just been presented.

Hostesses for the afternoon tea which followed were Mrs. Raymond Craft and Mrs. Henry Millonig.

The next meeting of the Music Appreciation Group will be held November 16 when several of Beethoven's symphonies will be studied.

Casterlin to Speak At Townsend Club

Merlin Casterlin, New York State Townsend representative from Binghamton, will be guest speaker tomorrow evening at 8 at the annual turkey dinner and bazaar of Kingston Townsend Club No. 1. Mr. Casterlin will also install the newly elected club council.

The supper and bazaar, with serving beginning at 6, will be held in Mechanics Hall. Bazaar tables will feature many items suitable for Christmas buying.

Members, friends, and the general public are invited to attend the supper, and the meeting.

Little Gardens Club Listens to Lecture On Eastern Shells

The history, lore, and fascination of the shells which dot American beaches along the eastern seaboard was the subject of an address given by Mrs. John Gill when she spoke before members of the Little Gardens Club Friday afternoon at the Nieuw Dorp, Hurley. Mrs. Gill also showed her large collection of shells which she had gathered along the eastern coast of Florida, known as the shell collector's paradise.

There are many classifications of shells, Mrs. Gill told the group, and any one type contains enough interesting material for the biologist to make a lifelong study. Shells, she explained, are the product of a group of animals whose fossils date back 3,000,000 years to the Paleozoic era. Biologically the shell is merely the counterpart of the mammalian backbone.

Florida Shells

Mrs. Gill then described to the group the wealth of shells which can be found in Florida alone. The east coast of the peninsula is known for its tropical specimens, carried northward from the tropics by storms and currents. Due to the geologic construction of east coast beaches, which are steeper and deeper than most, allowing the water to come closer to shore, certain shells appear which are seldom found along western beaches. Oddly enough the west coast claims most shell enthusiasts. Here, where the shelf-like beaches descend more gradually to deep water, shells are more brilliant, and varied. Often specimens, native to the coral reefs, are tossed up during the course of a storm.

Picturesque Names

The many picturesque names which shells come to be known by were given by Florida's amateur collectors, Mrs. Gill continued. There are, for example, the vivid bleeding tooth, an aggressive moon shaped shell known as the shark's eye, and the Golden Panama Lion's Paw.

Among the many shells in Mrs. Gill's collection which club members admired were the rose petal, the Scotch bonnet, tulip shell, buttercup shell, shark's eye, mandarin shell, Chinese alphabet, turkey wing, spotted bull's eye, canoe shell, sunrise, sundial, keyhole limpet, carrier star, rose cockle, calico scallop, worm shell, hairy triton, nutmeg, flesh marginella, Florida cone, fighting conch, crown conch, horse conch, lace murex, apple star shell, banded tulip, rough scallop, and measled cowery micromac.

During the tea which followed Mrs. Elvira Wolven and Mrs. Maud Doty were the hostesses, while Mrs. J. J. Carroll poured.

No definate date has been set for the wedding.

Miss Mary Rhodes Is Guest Speaker at Mount Holyoke Club

Illustrating her descriptions and comparisons with facts gleaned from personal experience, Miss Mary Rhodes, head of the department of French at the Oakwood School, spoke on education and daily life in France and England at the fall luncheon meeting of the Hudson Valley Mount Holyoke Club. The meeting was held October 28 in the Rhinbeck Town Hall.

Miss Rhodes, who was educated in France and England, and has travelled extensively throughout Europe, revealed her insight in European conditions both before and after World War 2.

Speaking of England under its present Socialist regime, she emphasized that everyone is adequately fed, in spite of wartime restrictions. One example she cited was the cost of butter which, through government subsidies to the producer, now costs the consumer only 23 cents a pound. Miss Rhodes also attributed France's increased child population to the French government's subsidization of large families.

The group's business meeting was conducted by President Mrs. Benjamin Collins of Rhinebeck, who appointed a nominating committee to present a slate of officers at the club's spring meeting.

The Mount Holyoke Club will hold a special luncheon November 18 at the Nelson House, Poughkeepsie, when Dean Cameron of Mount Holyoke College will be guest speaker. Miss Cameron will speak on the Far East, in addition to answering questions about the college.

Home Bureau Makes Winter Bouquets

The Kingston Home Bureau day unit held a class in winter flower arrangements last Wednesday morning at the Home Bureau rooms, 410 Broadway, conducted by Miss Helena Olds of New Paltz. Miss Olds was assisted by Mrs. Helen A. Bongartz. To illustrate the project Miss Olds showed the group a variety of arrangements.

During the meeting each of the 16 guests and members present completed a bouquet.

Shower Honors Future Bride

A surprise shower in honor of Miss Julia Whipple was held Friday evening at the home of Miss Phyllis Williams, 58 Van Buren street. Miss Whipple will become the bride of Anthony Gallo November 19 at St. Joseph's Church.

Hostesses at the shower were Miss Phyllis Williams, and Miss Lillian Heidcamp. Decorations included the traditional shower umbrella, and green and yellow streamers.

Those present at the Williams home were the Mmes. John Palacco, George Lindholm, Connie Weil, Thomas Crosby, and Ben Chase, and the Misses Lillian Heidcamp, Dolores Buley, Betty Spoonhauer and Susan Fabbie.

Home Bureau Unit From Lomontville Sees Tumor Clinic

The work of the American Cancer Society in Ulster county, and active interest in the Ulster County Tumor Clinic, prompted 14 members of the Lomontville Home Bureau unit last Thursday to visit the clinic, and learn more of one of the most dreaded diseases of our times.

Mrs. Harry Parker Van Wagenen, executive director of the Ulster county branch of the American Cancer Society received the group and arranged the program. After speaking briefly on the history of the Cancer Society, Mrs. Van Wagenen showed two of their films designed to illustrate and stress the importance of early cancer detection and treatment in relation to good health.

The group also toured the Tumor Clinic while Mrs. Van Wagenen explained the use of many of its rooms, as well as the modern facilities employed in the treatment of tumor and cancer patients.

The tour was arranged for the group by Mrs. Carl Dedy, sponsor of the Lomontville Home Bureau unit, and Mrs. Edwin B. Shumate, Marbletown, chairman of the American Cancer Society's educational program, expressed the hope that other groups would plan a similiar program for their members.

Those visiting the clinic were Mrs. Mark Bryant, Mrs. Anthony Bruntaeger, Mrs. Raymond Elliot, Mrs. Raymond Le Fevre, Mrs. Oscar Kafka, Mrs. Ernest Johnston, Mrs. Frank Altieri, Mrs. Loring Jansen, Mrs. Gordon Eckert, Mrs. Karlton Bowers, Mrs. Walter Vollmeke, Mrs. William Kohler, Mrs. Edwin Shumate, and Mrs. Carl Dedy.

Personal Notes

The Rev. and Mrs. Harold Schaible of the Ponckhockie Congregational Church are the parents of a daughter, Melissa Ann, born November 1 at the Benedictine Hospital. Mrs. Schaible is the former Marion Palen.

Marvin I. Millens, son of Mr. and Mrs. Max Millens, 81 Andrew street, has been initiated into Omega Pi Alpha, social fraternity at Syracuse University.

Betty L. Bryant, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. V. Bryant of Lomontville, as president of the student council, Buffalo State Teachers College, represented the student body at the ceremonies held when Gov. Thomas E. Dewey laid the cornerstone for the college's new Edward H. Butlar library. Following the ceremonies Miss Bryant accompanied the governor on an inspection tour of the campus.

Miss Jaqueline Jackson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Jackson, has been elected chairman of Senior Week at Beaver College where she is majoring in biology.

Music Group Hears Beethoven Lecture

A lecture, prepared by Mrs. William Petri and Mrs. Florence Cubberly on the life and work of Ludwig Van Beethoven who, at the age of 11 published his first works, provided ample background material for members of the Music Appreciation Group when they met Thursday at the Y.W.C.A.

Many of the famous composer's recordings were also played, followed by an explanation of the content, form, and style of each work which had just been presented.

Hostesses for the afternoon tea which followed were Mrs. Raymond Craft and Mrs. Henry Millonig.

The next meeting of the Music Appreciation Group will be held November 16 when several of Beethoven's symphonies will be studied.

Casterlin to Speak At Townsend Club

Little Gardens Club Listens to Lecture On Eastern Shells

The history, lore, and fascination of the shells which dot American beaches along the eastern seaboard was the subject of an address given by Mrs. John Gill when she spoke before members of the Little Gardens Club Friday afternoon at the Nieuw Dorp, Hurley. Mrs. Gill also showed her large collection of shells which she had gathered along the eastern coast of Florida, known as the shell collector's paradise.

There are many classifications of shells, Mrs. Gill told the group, and any one type contains enough interesting material for the biologist to make a lifelong study. Shells, she explained, are the product of a group of animals whose fossils date back 3,000,000 years to the Paleozoic era. Biologically the shell is merely the counterpart of the mammalian backbone.

Florida Shells

Mrs. Gill then described to the group the wealth of shells which can be found in Florida alone. The east coast of the peninsula is known for its tropical specimens, carried northward from the tropics by storms and currents. Due to the geologic construction of east coast beaches, which are steeper and deeper than most, allowing the water to come closer to shore, certain shells appear which are seldom found along western beaches. Oddly enough the west coast claims most shell enthusiasts. Here, where the shelf-like beaches descend more gradually to deep water, shells are more brilliant, and varied. Often specimens, native to the coral reefs, are tossed up during the course of a storm.

Picturesque Names

The many picturesque names which shells come to be known by were given by Florida's amateur collectors, Mrs. Gill continued. There are, for example, the vivid bleeding tooth, an aggressive moon shaped shell known as the shark's eye, and the Golden Panama Lion's Paw.

Among the many shells in Mrs. Gill's collection which club members admired were the rose petal, the Scotch bonnet, tulip shell, buttercup shell, shark's eye, mandarin shell, Chinese alphabet, turkey wing, spotted bull's eye, canoe shell, sunrise, sundial, keyhole limpet, carrier star, rose cockle, calico scallop, worm shell, hairy triton, nutmeg, flesh marginella, Florida cone, fighting conch, crown conch, horse conch, lace murex, apple star shell, banded tulip, rough scallop, and measled cowery micromac.

Youngsters Have Halloween Party

The MacDonald children held a costume Halloween party last week at their home, 88 Hasbrouck avenue. Almost all the costumes, which featured everything from devils and tramps to Mickey Mouse, were home made. During the afternoon games were played and refreshments were served.

Ancient Lineage

The pearly, or chambered, nautilus is the only living species of a long line of fossil forms of mollusks that reaches back at least 500,000,000 years.

Junior Marrieds Hold Initiation

Members of the Junior Married Women's Club initiated new members, and heard a report on the group's visit to the Ulster County Tumor Clinic when they met at the Y.W.C.A. last Thursday evening. The report was given by Mrs. Howard Fox, vice president, who ended by urging all those who have not visited the clinic to do so at the earliest opportunity.

Initiation, which followed the business meeting was conducted by the membership committee composed of Mrs. Harold Baltz, chairman; Mrs. Thomas Maines, Mrs. Howard Fox, and Mrs. Vincent Guido. Members initiated were Mrs. Peter Mathews, Mrs. George Rifenbary, Mrs. Clifford Avery, Mrs. Bernard Mizel, Mrs. Elbert MacFadden, Mrs. Claude Crispell, and Mrs. LeRoy Webber.

During the meeting Mrs. Fred Port, representative to the Ulster County Safety Council, invited members to visit the group's safety meetings, where Kingston safety problems are being studied. She also urged those with safety problems in their homes, or on their streets, to bring them before the council for discussion.

The Junior Married Women's Club will hold a food sale early in December, while President Gaffken will name committee chairmen this week for the club's card party which is scheduled for February.

Chairmen Discuss Home Bureau Plans

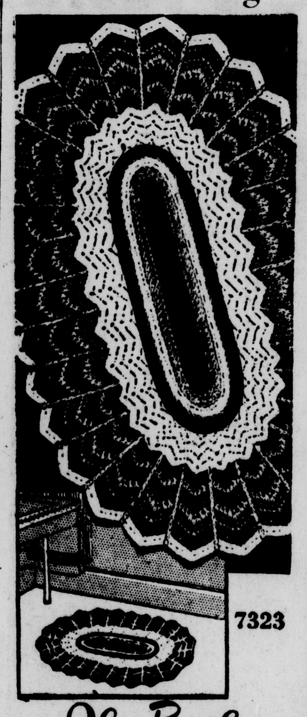

24 Ulster County Home Bureau unit chairmen met recently at the First Baptist Church, Albany avenue, to discuss Home Bureau activities for the next three months. Mrs. Thomas Goodman, newly elected chairman, presided. Other newly elected officers present were Mrs. Charles Reis, vice chairman, and Mrs. Raymond Trumpait.

Among business matters discussed were the selection and responsibilities of a nominating committee, the administrative matters of projects taught in the separate units, and plans for a Home Bureau trip to the United Nations.

Polio Victim Has Baby

Lancaster, Pa., Nov. 7 (AP)—Mrs. James V. Hash, 16-year-old polio victim, has given birth to a normal and healthy baby. A seven-pound girl was born to her in Lancaster General Hospital. Dr. C. S. Wenger said yesterday the infant "has every chance of surviving without contracting polio." Mrs. Hash was stricken with polio last Sept. 22. She is paralyzed in both legs and one arm.

Asks for Cut, Gets It

Jacksonville Beach, Fla., Nov. 7 (AP)—Mrs. Clare Swanson, city manager, got a $1,000 cut in her salary last night—but she asked for it. In a letter to the council, she suggested her $6,000 annual pay be trimmed and the difference added to the salary of a new director of public works. The board liked the idea. Former City Manager Hugh McCotter will get the new post at the same salary as the city manager, $5,000.

Ancient Creed

The Apostles' Creed is not in the Bible. It is an authorized statement of the doctrines of faith in the Christian church. In its present form, it was known in the fourth century.

Douglas Gives Warning

London, Nov. 7 (AP)—Retiring U. S. Ambassador Lewis W. Douglas warned last night that France and Germany must be reconciled. Guest of honor of the Pilgrim Society at a dinner, Douglas said the North Atlantic Pact has made it evident that effective mutual defense in western Europe depended on an understanding between the two traditional continental enemies. "Enduring reconciliation," he suggested, could be found within French Foreign Minister Robert Schuman's plan for integration of western Europe's coal and steel industries.

MOM! MY COLD NEEDS

DEEP-ACTION relief from coughs, chokey stuffiness with every breath!

● Mother, here's a special way to give your little one wonderful comfort with the very same Vicks VapoRub that always brings such grand results when you rub it on!

Easy . . . Effective: Put 2 good spoonfuls of VapoRub in a vaporizer or bowl of boiling water as directed in package. Then . . . let your youngster breathe in the soothing, medicated vapors.

Every breath carries VapoRub's famous combination of time-proved medications deep into large bronchial tubes. Comforting relief from distress of colds comes in a hurry!

Then . . . to keep up relief for hours, rub Vicks VapoRub on throat, chest and back, too.

HOME-PROVED FOR YOU BY MILLIONS OF MOTHERS!

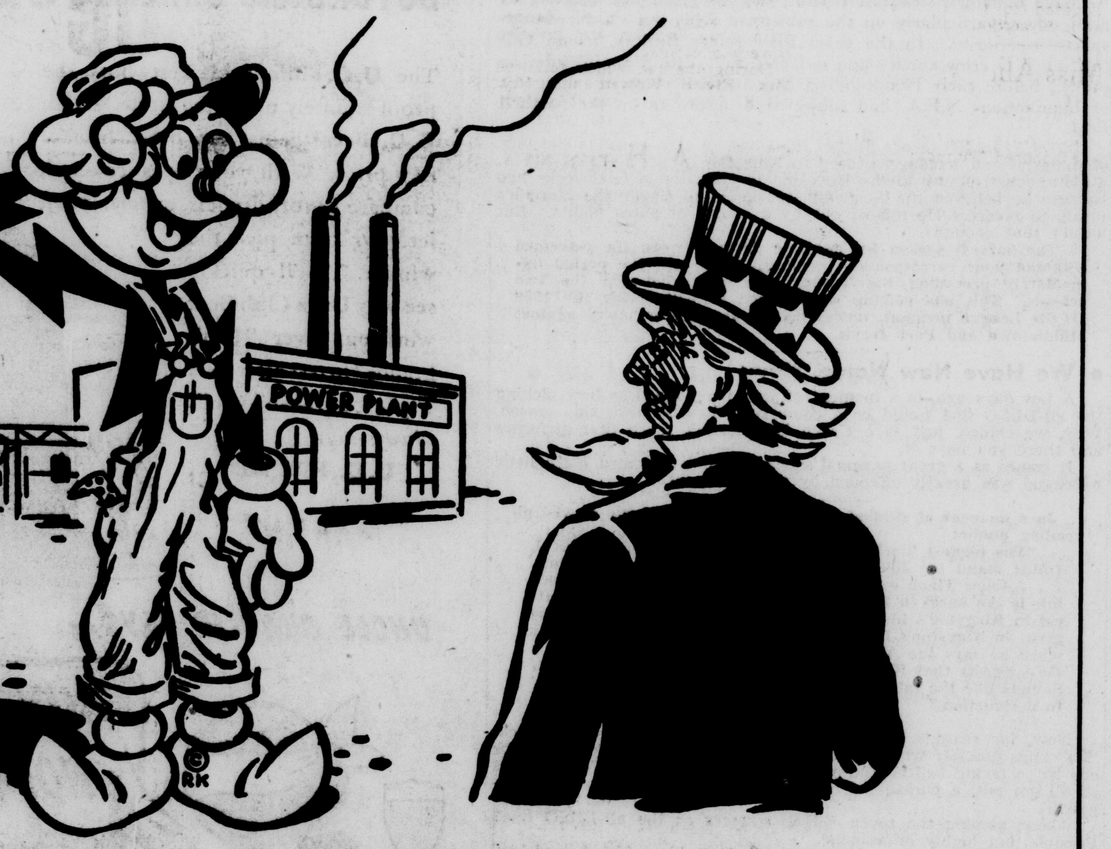

DO YOU HATE CHANGE of LIFE?

Do you suffer from hot flushes, nervous tension, upset emotions—due to functional 'change of life' (38 to 52 years)—that period when fertility ebbs away, when symptoms of this nature may often betray your age?

Start taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to relieve such symptoms. No other medicine of this type for women has such a long record of success. Taken regularly, Pinkham's Compound helps build up resistance against such middle-age distress. A great medicine made especially for women. The woman's friend! NOTE: Or you may prefer Lydia E. Two Future Brides Are Given Shower

A miscellaneous shower in honor of Miss Margaret Wilson of 248 Elmendorf street, and Miss Evelyn Joerz was held Thursday at the home of Miss Alma Rider, 40 Sherman street. Miss Wilson will become the bride of Robert Schwenk November 25, and Miss Joerz will become the bride of Arthur Tatum November 11. Both Miss Wilson and Miss Joerz were graduated from Kingston Hospital with the class of '50.

Decorations at the shower included multi-colored crepe paper streamers, a covered umbrella, and individual baskets.

Present at the shower were the Mmes. Fred Schwenk, Walter Smith, Elliott Tatum, Fred Seegar, Tracy Elliott, and A. J. Rider; and the Misses Margaret Wilson, Evelyn Joerz, Martha Lyon, Janet Kniffer, Murial Hoyt, Vera Bolt, Shirley Berryann, Lois Aldridge, Mary Howard, June Greening, Thelma Kelsey, Catherine Hines, Edith Freer, Barbara Clark, Ingeborg Fleig, Lois Rider, Alma Rider, Bernice Edge and Grace Elliott.

Youngsters Have Halloween Party

The MacDonald children held a costume Halloween party last week at their home, 88 Hasbrouck avenue. Almost all the costumes, which featured everything from devils and tramps to Mickey Mouse, were home made. During the afternoon games were played and refreshments were served.

Junior Marrieds Hold Initiation

Members of the Junior Married Women's Club initiated new members, and heard a report on the group's visit to the Ulster County Tumor Clinic when they met at the Y.W.C.A. last Thursday evening. The report was given by Mrs. Howard Fox, vice president, who ended by urging all those who have not visited the clinic to do so at the earliest opportunity.

Initiation, which followed the business meeting was conducted by the membership committee composed of Mrs. Harold Baltz, chairman; Mrs. Thomas Maines, Mrs. Howard Fox, and Mrs. Vincent Guido. Members initiated were Mrs. Peter Mathews, Mrs. George Rifenbary, Mrs. Clifford Avery, Mrs. Bernard Mizel, Mrs. Elbert MacFadden, Mrs. Claude Crispell, and Mrs. LeRoy Webber.

During the meeting Mrs. Fred Port, representative to the Ulster County Safety Council, invited members to visit the group's safety meetings, where Kingston safety problems are being studied. She also urged those with safety problems in their homes, or on their streets, to bring them before the council for discussion.

The Junior Married Women's Club will hold a food sale early in December, while President Gaffken will name committee chairmen this week for the club's card party which is scheduled for February.

Chairmen Discuss Home Bureau Plans

24 Ulster County Home Bureau unit chairmen met recently at the First Baptist Church, Albany avenue, to discuss Home Bureau activities for the next three months. Mrs. Thomas Goodman, newly elected chairman, presided. Other newly elected officers present were Mrs. Charles Reis, vice chairman, and Mrs. Raymond Trumpait.

Among business matters discussed were the selection and responsibilities of a nominating committee, the administrative matters of projects taught in the separate units, and plans for a Home Bureau trip to the United Nations.

Polio Victim Has Baby

Lancaster, Pa., Nov. 7 (AP)—Mrs. James V. Hash, 16-year-old polio victim, has given birth to a normal and healthy baby. A seven-pound girl was born to her in Lancaster General Hospital. Dr. C. S. Asks for Cut, Gets It

Jacksonville Beach, Fla., Nov. 7 (AP)—Mrs. Clare Swanson, city manager, got a $1,000 cut in her salary last night—but she asked for it. In a letter to the council, she suggested her $6,000 annual pay be trimmed and the difference added to the salary of a new director of public works. The board liked the idea. Former City Manager Hugh McCotter will get the new post at the same salary as the city manager, $5,000.

Rickey Signs With Pirates as Vice President and General Manager

Long Expected Deal Announced; Junior Goes, Too

Mahatma Is Silent on Choice of Manager

Pittsburgh, Nov. 7 (AP)—Branch Rickey, generally regarded as baseball's shrewdest executive, has a brand new challenge today—lifting the Pittsburgh Pirates out of the National League cellar.

Rickey is the new vice president and general manager of the Bucs—a team that hasn't won a pennant since 1927.

The 68-year-old man with the bushy eyebrows and fat cigar didn't bat an eye yesterday, when Pirate President John Galbreath told a news conference the rumors about Rickey coming to the Bucs were true.

A little later, when congratulatory remarks were being passed around, Rickey beamed as only Rickey can.

Some of the details filtered out. Rickey has a five-year contract at an unannounced salary. There's a clause permitting him to extend the contract another five years.

What will happen to the club's present general manager, portly Roy Hamey?

Well, Rickey isn't prepared to say at the moment, but he smiled and added:

"I'm not familiar with the titles in the club's corporate structure.  But I see nothing wrong with having two or three general managers.

Junior Goes Along

"Roy will continue to do much the same job as he has in the past, concentrating on players. My son (Branch Rickey, Jr.,) will have a similar responsibility."

Young Rickey has been associated with his father several years and was expected to go along after the "Mahatma" resigned last week as president and general manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Rickey's coming to Pittsburgh has been in the rumor stage for months. The rumors got hotter after Rickey sold his Dodger stock because Galbreath helped engineer the deal.

Galbreath declared:

"I told Branch that when his contract expired I would like him to talk to me about a new job before anyone else."

Rickey said that in his new contract there are no provisions for buying Pirate stock.

Mum on Meyer

Rickey, the man who built the St. Louis Cardinal farm system, and who brought pennant winners to both the Cards and Dodgers, was his old cagey self when he got down to discussing the immediate future.

"Will Bill Meyer be back to finish the last year of his contract as manager?" he was asked.

"I've been giving that a thought the last few days but I haven't made up my mind yet. I'll be able to answer that in a month."

Rickey added quickly that he hasn't made up his mind about possible player trades.

"And where will the Pirates finish next year?"

Rickey was solemn as he answered:

"Your guess is as good as mine. With the war situation what it is, the race could wind up in a real scramble, depending on what the clubs lose to the draft in personnel."

New Orleans—Jackie Graves, 128¼, Austin, Minn., TKO'd Charlie Titone, 125½, Brooklyn (5).

SLICK—A new type of skis feature a sandwich construction. They are made of hickory with laminated plastic bonded to top and bottom. They are reported to be faster and more durable than wooden sks.

Ogg Speaker At Golf Dinner

Willie Ogg, Albany Country Club professional and famous club designer for Wilson, heads the battery of golf personalities for the third annual city golf dinner on Monday, Nov. 13, at the Stuyvesant Hotel.

Ogg, a great player in the early era of professional golf, devised several different styles of putters and improved other Wilson products down through the years. Together with Gene Sarazen the Germantown Squire, he is a senior member of the staff.

Invitations have been extended to Sarazen, who was such a terrific hit last year, and other guests.

The dinner will honor Bill Van Aken, of Wiltwyck Golf Club, the first two-time city golf champion. Van Aken won his second crown this year by trouncing Alvin Boice, 10 and 9.

Sally Russell of Saugerties and Joe Kwasney of Whiteport, the Freeman hole-in-one champions, will also be honored that night.

Tickets for the dinner are available at both golf clubs.

Oneonta Keglers Trim Jones Dairy Juniors

The youthful Jones Dairy keglers who refuse to be called "Juniors," dropped a 36-pin decision to the Oneonta Recreation, in a week-end bowling exhibition at the Bowlodrome, 2628-2664.

The Oneonta keglers thus squared accounts for a recent setback on their home drives. D. Prenzia anchored the winners, with 210-204—596 and J. Rosher posted 224—543. High man for Joneses was Joe Bosco with 201—559; Chris Gallo 232—553; Jim Moss 205.

SPORTS

By CHARLES J. TIANO
Freeman Sports Editor

• "Bo" Gill, Golfer, Objects:

Many the day when we are scratching for a paragraph or two in the humdrum routine of grinding out a column, our thoughts turn ever so lightly and lovingly to our staunch colleague in Newburgh, Wesley F. Gill, known to the trade as "Bo."

The feeling is mutual, we suppose, and, down through the years, we have remained steadfast friends, despite occasional needling of each other, particularly on the subject of Kingston vs. Newburgh sports superiority. In the years BB (Before Burke), friend Gill had much to crow about—and did, faithfully listing for his adoring public, before each Thanksgiving Day football clash, the long list of humiliations N.F.A. had subjected Kingston to on the football field.

In the years SB (Since Burke) "Bo" has suffered an acute shortage of material and seldom ventured to Kingston to see a K.H.S.-N.F.A. athletic joust of any kind. He came to Kingston a few weeks ago because he believed the Academy was going to smear the Maroon's unsullied record. He missed out by a couple of extra points. But wasn't that enough?

The harvest season for needling duels between the esteemed Gill and your correspondent generally occurs in the period immediately preceding the Turkey Day clash between the two schools. This one coming up on Nov. 23 will decide the 1950 DUSO League pennant, unless both contenders go awry against Middletown and Port Jervis.

• We Have New Name, Now:

A few days ago, in a moment of jest, we allowed as how picking the all-DUSO line would be a comparatively easy task this season. Why, we chided, just take Coach Bill Burke's seven first stringers and there you have it.

It comes as a great personal shock that our esteemed journalistic colleague was greatly offended by the statement.

In a moment of studied righteousness, Gill told the Newburgh reading public:

"The biggest 'line' in football today is the one Charles J. (must stand for Jokér) Tiano is trying to feed the public. . . . Joker Tiano would want one to believe that Kingston's line is the finest in DUSO League play, today, and the greatest in Kingston's history. . . . It wouldn't take much to be great in Kingston's football history, but Joker is really funny when he says the All-DUSO selections will be simple. . . . He suggests that Kingston's seven-man line be named. . . . Sounds like the talk Hitler used in leading the 'Master Race' to destruction."

Now, for reasons of clarification and accuracy, let's backtrack. "Bo" puns horribly when he says the "biggest line" in football is the one we're trying to feed the public. That's no "line." We're serious as all get out, a phrase the origin of which we have never investigated.

About naming the seven K.H.S. starters as the all-DUSO line? Possible, but highly improbable.

We have stated many times that this 1950 line which has yielded only one touchdown rushing (and that by N.F.A.) shapes up as the finest since 1929. That Kias-coached team was undefeated and unscored on for seven straight games, before N.F.A. (what again!) sullied its record with a safety in the opening minutes of play at the old Fair Grounds and then went on to win 9-0.

• How About a Showdown?

If the 1950 line succeeds in holding Middletown and Newburgh scoreless in the remaining two games on the K.H.S. schedule (a slim and remote possibility), then surely it will have to be ranked with the 1929 line, which was, by all standards of rating the best ever at K.H.S.

When "Bo" says that our talk sounds like the talk Hitler used, he aspires to such lofty rhetorics that we cannot ever hope to compete with him. He wins that one, all by himself.

As to the relative strength of the lines, if "Bo" can devise any method to test the agility, strength and impregnability of the respective forward walls, we'd like to extend a challenge to Newburgh.

If such a method is found, let's stage an exhibition, here in Kingston (crowds are always better) and turn over the receipts to some worthwhile charity. That should settle the issue once and for all.

In the meantime, we learn that Major Amos B. Hoople, the fugitive from Gallup's Sanitarium, has installed N.F.A. a 6-point favorite over K.H.S. for the Turkey Day game.

That might be the day to prove that this 1950 Kingston line is more than the figment of Joker Tiano's imagination.

Mannie's Barbers Clip Catskill Rec Keglers

Mannie's Barbers, playing a one-night stand without The Barber, defeated the Catskill Recreation keglers, 2637 to 2573, in a special match on the upriver drives.

Trailing by 75 pins at the end of two games, the Barbers honed their way to a gaudy 957, while Catskill was bagging only 818.

Top man was Ralph Garafola with 211-556, a pin ahead of Harry Secreto's 225-555. Jim Benicase posted 529. Brown packed 220-599 for Catskill.

Army Leads AP Poll but Yields First Place Votes to Ohio State

If Only Next Year, Wails New Mexico

Albuquerque, N. M., Nov. 7 (AP)—Light, slow, battered and beaten:

That is Head Coach Dudley S. Degroot's description of his New Mexico University football team.

And New Mexico meets mighty Army at West Point this Saturday.

This is Degroot's first year as head coach at the school and he's been having his troubles.

The New Mexico Lobos swung into preparations for the game in a spirit akin to desperation. It looks like the game will be as soft a breather as Army, No. 1 in this week's AP football poll, is likely to find.

Commenting on the Saturday contest, Degroot said:

"This is a wonderful opportunity for the boys to have the privilege of meeting the nation's best team. I'm only sorry that our team is no more representative of the power of southwestern football.

"You might add that it is unfortunate New Mexico will not have this opportunity of playing army next year when new blood has been added to the team."

By WILL GRIMSLEY

New York, Nov. 7 (AP) — The question of who has the best college football team in the country probably never has been more widely debated than right now.

Twelve teams received first place votes in today's latest Associated Press poll, which saw Army recapture the No. 1 position from Southern Methodist.

But the Cadets, who led the rankings until replaced by the southwesterners two weeks ago, didn't go to the top on a wave of overwhelming national acclaim.

94 First Place

They received only 88 of the 314 first place votes cast by sports writers and broadcasters. That was six fewer than lavished on once-beaten Ohio State, which moved up from fourth to second.

Nine of the ten top teams—all but tenth-ranked Illinois — were rated first by from two to 94 voters. Three in the lower brackets received top mention.

Here's college football's new first ten:

Army, Ohio State, Oklahoma, Kentucky, Texas, California, Southern Methodist, Princeton, Miami (Fla.), Illinois.

Oklahoma, which has a modern record 27-game winning streak going, received 48 first place place votes while unbeaten Kentucky got 35. California was given 14, Texas 11, Miami 8, Princeton 4 and SMU 2.

Clemson, the 13th ranking eleven, polled seven No. 1 votes, unbeaten Wyoming, two and South Carolina one.

The standings are figures on the basis of ten points for first, nine for second, etc.

Buckeyes in Surge

The surge of Ohio State featured the latest balloting. The Buckeyes, who have bounded back from an opening game loss to SMU to smother five foes, barely were beaten out of first place.

They received 2,402 points compard with 2,451 for Army. Five more No. 1 votes would have put them on top.

The Buckeyes, who walloped Northwestern Saturday, 32-0, will meet Wisconsin next.

Army, 28-13 conqueror of Penn, has a breather this week in New Mexico while the other ranking elevens have it fairly rugged.

The voting, with first place votes in parentheses (points on 10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1 basis):

Top Ten	Points
1. Army (88)	2,451
2. Ohio State (94)	2,402
3. Oklahoma (48)	2,389
4. Kentucky (35)	1,920
5. Texas (11)	1,911
6. California (14)	1,631
7. Southern Methodist (2)	1,488
8. Princeton (4)	627
9. Miami (8)	602
10. Illinois	570

Rickey Signs With Pirates as Vice President and General Manager

Long Expected Deal Announced; Junior Goes, Too

Mahatma Is Silent on Choice of Manager

Pittsburgh, Nov. 7 (AP)—Branch Rickey, generally regarded as baseball's shrewdest executive, has a brand new challenge today—lifting the Pittsburgh Pirates out of the National League cellar.

Rickey is the new vice president and general manager of the Bucs—a team that hasn't won a pennant since 1927.

The 68-year-old man with the bushy eyebrows and fat cigar didn't bat an eye yesterday, when Pirate President John Galbreath told a news conference the rumors about Rickey coming to the Bucs were true.

A little later, when congratulatory remarks were being passed around, Rickey beamed as only Rickey can.

Some of the details filtered out. Rickey has a five-year contract at an unannounced salary. There's a clause permitting him to extend the contract another five years.

What will happen to the club's present general manager, portly Roy Hamey?

Well, Rickey isn't prepared to say at the moment, but he smiled and added:

"I'm not familiar with the titles in the club's corporate structure.  But I see nothing wrong with having two or three general managers.

Junior Goes Along

"Roy will continue to do much the same job as he has in the past, concentrating on players. My son (Branch Rickey, Jr.,) will have a similar responsibility."

Young Rickey has been associated with his father several years and was expected to go along after the "Mahatma" resigned last week as president and general manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Rickey's coming to Pittsburgh has been in the rumor stage for months. The rumors got hotter after Rickey sold his Dodger stock because Galbreath helped engineer the deal.

Galbreath declared:

"I told Branch that when his contract expired I would like him to talk to me about a new job before anyone else."

Rickey said that in his new contract there are no provisions for buying Pirate stock.

Mum on Meyer

Rickey, the man who built the St. Louis Cardinal farm system, and who brought pennant winners to both the Cards and Dodgers, was his old cagey self when he got down to discussing the immediate future.

"Will Bill Meyer be back to finish the last year of his contract as manager?" he was asked.

"I've been giving that a thought the last few days but I haven't made up my mind yet. I'll be able to answer that in a month."

Rickey added quickly that he hasn't made up his mind about possible player trades.

"And where will the Pirates finish next year?"

Rickey was solemn as he enswered:

"Your guess is as good as mine. With the war situation what it is, the race could wind up in a real scramble, depending on what the clubs lose to the draft in personnel."

SLICK—A new type of skis feature a sandwich construction. They are made of hickory with laminated plastic bonded to top and bottom. They are reported to be faster and more durable than wooden sks.

New Orleans—Jackie Graves, 128¼, Austin, Minn., TKO'd Charlie Titone, 125½, Brooklyn (5).

Ogg Speaker At Golf Dinner

Willie Ogg, Albany Country Club professional and famous club designer for Wilson, heads the battery of golf personalities for the third annual city golf dinner on Monday, Nov. 13, at the Stuyvesant Hotel.

Ogg, a great player in the early era of professional golf, devised several different styles of putters and improved other Wilson products down through the years. Together with Gene Sarazen the Germantown Squire, he is a senior member of the staff.

Invitations have been extended to Sarazen, who was such a terrific hit last year, and other guests.

The dinner will honor Bill Van Aken, of Wiltwyck Golf Club, the first two-time city golf champion. Van Aken won his second crown this year by trouncing Alvin Boice, 10 and 9.

Sally Russell of Saugerties and Joe Kwasney of Whiteport, the Freeman hole-in-one champions, will also be honored that night.

Tickets for the dinner are available at both golf clubs.

Oneonta Keglers Trim Jones Dairy Juniors

The youthful Jones Dairy keglers who refuse to be called "Juniors," dropped a 36-pin decision to the Oneonta Recreation, in a week-end bowling exhibition at the Bowlodrome, 2628-2664.

The Oneonta keglers thus squared accounts for a recent setback on their home drives. D. Prenzia anchored the winners, with 210-204—596 and J. Rosher posted 224—543. High man for Joneses was Joe Bosco with 201—559; Chris Gallo 232—553; Jim Moss 205.

Army Leads AP Poll but Yields First Place Votes to Ohio State

If Only Next Year, Wails New Mexico

Albuquerque, N. M., Nov. 7 (AP)—Light, slow, battered and beaten:

That is Head Coach Dudley S. Degroot's description of his New Mexico University football team.

And New Mexico meets mighty Army at West Point this Saturday.

This is Degroot's first year as head coach at the school and he's been having his troubles.

The New Mexico Lobos swung into preparations for the game in a spirit akin to desperation. It looks like the game will be as soft a breather as Army, No. 1 in this week's AP football poll, is likely to find.

Commenting on the Saturday contest, Degroot said:

"This is a wonderful opportunity for the boys to have the privilege of meeting the nation's best team. I'm only sorry that our team is no more representative of the power of southwestern football.

"You might add that it is unfortunate New Mexico will not have this opportunity of playing army next year when new blood has been added to the team."

By WILL GRIMSLEY

New York, Nov. 7 (AP) — The question of who has the best college football team in the country probably never has been more widely debated than right now.

Twelve teams received first place votes in today's latest Associated Press poll, which saw Army recapture the No. 1 position from Southern Methodist.

But the Cadets, who led the rankings until replaced by the southwesterners two weeks ago, didn't go to the top on a wave of overwhelming national acclaim.

94 First Place

They received only 88 of the 314 first place votes cast by sports writers and broadcasters. That was six fewer than lavished on once-beaten Ohio State, which moved up from fourth to second.

Nine of the ten top teams—all but tenth-ranked Illinois — were rated first by from two to 94 voters. Three in the lower brackets received top mention.

Here's college football's new first ten:

Army, Ohio State, Oklahoma, Kentucky, Texas, California, Southern Methodist, Princeton, Miami (Fla.), Illinois.

Oklahoma, which has a modern record 27-game winning streak going, received 48 first place votes while unbeaten Kentucky got 35. California was given 14, Texas 11, Miami 8, Princeton 4 and SMU 2.

Clemson, the 13th ranking eleven, polled seven No. 1 votes, unbeaten Wyoming, two and South Carolina one.

The standings are figures on the basis of ten points for first, nine for second, etc.

Buckeyes in Surge

The surge of Ohio State featured the latest balloting. The Buckeyes, who have bounded back from an opening game loss to SMU to smother five foes, barely were beaten out of first place.

They received 2,402 points compard with 2,451 for Army. Five more No. 1 votes would have put them on top.

The Buckeyes, who walloped Northwestern Saturday, 32-0, will meet Wisconsin next.

Army, 28-13 conqueror of Penn, has a breather this week in New Mexico while the other ranking elevens have it fairly rugged.

The voting, with first place votes in parentheses (points on 10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1 basis):

Top Ten	Points
1. Army (88)	2,451
2. Ohio State (94)	2,402
3. Oklahoma (48)	2,389
4. Kentucky (35)	1,920
5. Texas (11)	1,911
6. California (14)	1,631
7. Southern Methodist (2)	1,488
8. Princeton (4)	627
9. Miami (8)	602
10. Illinois	570

SPORTS

By CHARLES J. TIANO
Freeman Sports Editor

• "Bo" Gill, Golfer, Objects:

Many the day when we are scratching for a paragraph or two in the humdrum routine of grinding out a column, our thoughts turn ever so lightly and lovingly to our staunch colleague in Newburgh, Wesley F. Gill, known to the trade as "Bo."

The feeling is mutual, we suppose, and, down through the years, we have remained steadfast friends, despite occasional needling of each other, particularly on the subject of Kingston vs. Newburgh sports superiority. In the years BB (Before Burke), friend Gill had much to crow about—and did, faithfully listing for his adoring public, before each Thanksgiving Day football clash, the long list of humiliations N.F.A. had subjected Kingston to on the football field.

In the years SB (Since Burke) "Bo" has suffered an acute shortage of material and seldom ventured to Kingston to see a K.H.S.-N.F.A. athletic joust of any kind. He came to Kingston a few weeks ago because he believed the Academy was going to smear the Maroon's unsullied record. He missed out by a couple of extra points. But wasn't that enough?

The harvest season for needling duels between the esteemed Gill and your correspondent generally occurs in the period immediately preceding the Turkey Day clash between the two schools. This one coming up on Nov. 23 will decide the 1950 DUSO League pennant, unless both contenders go awry against Middletown and Port Jervis.

• We Have New Name, Now:

A few days ago, in a moment of jest, we allowed as how picking the all-DUSO line would be a comparatively easy task this season. Why, we chided, just take Coach Bill Burke's seven first stringers and there you have it.

It comes as a great personal shock that our esteemed journalistic colleague was greatly offended by the statement.

In a moment of studied righteousness, Gill told the Newburgh reading public:

"The biggest 'line' in football today is the one Charles J. (must stand for Jokér) Tiano is trying to feed the public. . . . Joker Tiano would want one to believe that Kingston's line is the finest in DUSO League play, today, and the greatest in Kingston's history. . . . It wouldn't take much to be great in Kingston's football history, but Joker is really funny when he says the All-DUSO selections will be simple. . . . He suggests that Kingston's seven-man line be named. . . . Sounds like the talk Hitler used in leading the 'Master Race' to destruction."

Now, for reasons of clarification and accuracy, let's backtrack. "Bo" puns horribly when he says the "biggest line" in football is the one we're trying to feed the public. That's no "line." We're serious as all get out, a phrase the origin of which we have never investigated.

About naming the seven K.H.S. starters as the all-DUSO line? Possible, but highly improbable.

We have stated many times that this 1950 line which has yielded only one touchdown rushing (and that by N.F.A.) shapes up as the finest since 1929. That Kias-coached team was undefeated and unscored on for seven straight games, before N.F.A. (what again!) sullied its record with a safety in the opening minutes of play at the old Fair Grounds and then went on to win 9-0.

• How About a Showdown?

If the 1950 line succeeds in holding Middletown and Newburgh scoreless in the remaining two games on the K.H.S. schedule (a slim and remote possibility), then surely it will have to be ranked with the 1929 line, which was, by all standards of rating the best ever at K.H.S.

When "Bo" says that our talk sounds like the talk Hitler used, he aspires to such lofty rhetorics that we cannot ever hope to compete with him. He wins that one, all by himself.

As to the relative strength of the lines, if "Bo" can devise any method to test the agility, strength and impregnability of the respective forward walls, we'd like to extend a challenge to Newburgh.

If such a method is found, let's stage an exhibition, here in Kingston (crowds are always better) and turn over the receipts to some worthwhile charity. That should settle the issue once and for all.

In the meantime, we learn that Major Amos B. Hoople, the fugitive from Gallup's Sanitarium, has installed N.F.A. a 6-point favorite over K.H.S. for the Turkey Day game.

That might be the day to prove that this 1950 Kingston line is more than the figment of Joker Tiano's imagination.

Mannie's Barbers Clip Catskill Rec Keglers

Mannie's Barbers, playing a one-night stand without The Barber, defeated the Catskill Recreation keglers, 2637 to 2573, in a special match on the upriver drives.

Trailing by 75 pins at the end of two games, the Barbers honed their way to a gaudy 957, while Catskill was bagging only 818.

Top man was Ralph Garafola with 211-556, a pin ahead of Harry Secreto's 225-555. Jim Benicase posted 529. Brown packed 220-599 for Catskill.

Samuel Stayman, of New York, is one of the members of the American team that is representing this country against England and the rest of Europe in an international bridge match at Bermuda. Stayman is probably best known for the bidding convention that bears his name, described last week in this column. He can also play the cards magnificently, as this hand, taken from this summer's national championships, clearly shows.

North knew he was taking a big risk when he raised to three no-trump. However, the hand took place towards the end of a team match, and North knew that the other team (which was a couple of thousand points behind) would be stretching all possible game hands in the effort to catch up. If the game could be made, North wanted his partner to be in it; if it couldn't be made, North knew that both teams would lose the same amount.

On the first trick, East put up the queen of clubs, and Stayman won in his own hand with the king. He returned the king of diamonds, and West played low. The fall of the eight of diamonds from the East hand encouraged Stayman to lead the queen of diamonds, in the expectation that East would have to drop the nine or jack.

This time West took his ace of diamonds. For lack of a better return (clubs looked dangerous, since South might have the seven for all West knew), West led back his last diamond to East's jack. East then led his remaining club, and declarer won with the ace.

Business was picking up, since Stayman could now count on five tricks in the minor suits. But how to extract four more tricks from spades and hearts?

He cashed the last diamond, hoping that a clue would be forthcoming—and was rewarded when East signaled with the eight of hearts. Stayman reasoned that East would have thrown the nine rather than the eight if he could have done so; which meant that West held the nine of hearts. Also that East probably started with at least four and possibly five hearts headed by the king-queen. A lot of information to extract from a single eight-spot—but all of it was logical!

He therefore led the ten of hearts from his hand, letting it ride to East's queen. East knew it would do him no good to return a heart up to dummy's ace-jack, so he led a low spade. Declarer played low, and West properly played low, allowing dummy to win with the nine.

Stayman was now sure of two spades and one heart, but still needed another trick in the major suits. He led a low spade to his ace, cashed the jack of clubs, and threw East in the lead with another spade. East had to return a heart up to dummy's ace-jack, thus giving Stayman his game contract.

THERE'S MORE ROOM INSIDE this big new Dodge . . . more head room, shoulder room, stretch-out leg room . . . than in many cars costing hundreds of dollars more.

AMERICA'S LOWEST-PRICED Automatic Transmission . . . Dodge Gyro-Matic frees you from shifting. Available on Coronet models at moderate extra cost.

GREATER VISIBILITY. Huge new rear picture window, eye-level side windows and Landscape Windshield give easier, wider, safer vision in every direction.

MORE LUGGAGE SPACE! Dodge advanced design gives you trim lines without wasting space. More luggage room—yet spare tire is always easily available.

DODGE RUGGED DEPENDABILITY means lower upkeep costs. High-compression engine gives flashing performance, pep-packed power—yet is a miser for gas and oil.

See for yourself! You could pay $1,000 more and still not get the extra roominess, driving ease and rugged dependability of DODGE!

IS FIVE MINUTES of your time worth $1,000? That's all the time we need to show you the proof of Dodge bigger dollar value! You'll see that this smart big Dodge gives you a new kind of driving ease . . . extra roominess . . . and money-saving dependability that you don't get in many cars costing as much as a thousand dollars more.

Come in today—and see how easy it is to own today's bigger value Dodge. Your present car will probably take care of the down payment.

Bigger Value
DODGE
Just a few dollars more than the lowest-priced cars

Shaky Majority Holds

London, Nov. 7 (AP)—Labor's shaky majority skinned through another test of strength in the House of Commons last night—defeating by 12 votes a Conservative motion of censure on its housing program. The vote was 300 to 288. It was the 61st vote in Commons since the general election last February left the Laborites with a narrow majority.

Also on display will be a UN flag made by Mrs. L. Stagg. Refreshments will be served.

Hurley Firemen Plan Election of Officers

Members of the Hurley Fire Company will hold their annual meeting and election of officers Monday, December 4, at the Hurley Hotel, it was announced today.

Prior to the business session, a spaghetti dinner will be served by John Pece, owner of the hotel. Movies will follow the meeting.

Members planning to attend the supper are requested to make reservations with President Harry Skerritt or Secretary Edmond Czerwinski prior to Dec. 4.

Butter off Ration List

Copenhagen, Denmark, Nov. 7 (AP)—Butter, which greased the skids under Denmark's last government, has been melted from the ration list by the new coalition regime. The eight-day-old government of Agarians and Conservatives yesterday de-rationed both butter and margarine for the first time in 10 years in this dairy industry land. The Socialist government of Hans Hedtoft fell Oct. 25 after a bitter debate over its policy of rationing butter to save as much as possible for foreign trade—mainly with Britain.

NOTICE OF SALE

COUNTY COURT, COUNTY OF ULSTER — THE HOME-SEEKERS' SAVINGS AND LOAN ASSOCIATION OF KINGSTON, NEW YORK, plaintiff, against DORA L. GRIFFIN, GEORGE GRIFFIN and THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF N. Y., defendants.

In pursuance of a judgment of foreclosure and sale, duly made and entered in the above entitled action and bearing date the 3rd day of November 1950, I, the undersigned, the Referee in the judgment named, will sell at public auction at the entrance of the Ulster County Court House in the City of Kingston, N. Y., at 11:30 A. M. on the 30th day of November 1950, the premises described and directed by said judgment to be sold and described as follows:

ALL THAT TRACT OR PARCEL OF LAND, situate in the City of Kingston, County of Ulster and State of New York, with the buildings thereon, situate, lying and being on the northerly side of Newkirk Avenue known as the Sahloff property, and being lot number forty-nine on Map of lands of E. B. Newkirk, and being about thirty feet front and rear and one hundred and fifty feet deep, be the same more or less.

Being the same premises conveyed by Carrie Dugan, widow to Francis Griffin and Dora L. Griffin, his wife, by deed dated May 24th, 1946 and recorded in Ulster County Clerk's Office on same day in Book 666 of Deeds at page 299.

Veterans Fight for Political Lives Today---

Voters in Five Big, Key States Decide Political Futures of Top Party Leaders in Today's Balloting

"Mr. (Midwestern) Republican" himself—Sen. Bob Taft—talks to guests at a party in his honor during a campaign to save his seat from State Auditor "Jumping Joe" Ferguson (bottom). As organized labor's No. 1 target, Taft is winding up the political fight of his life.

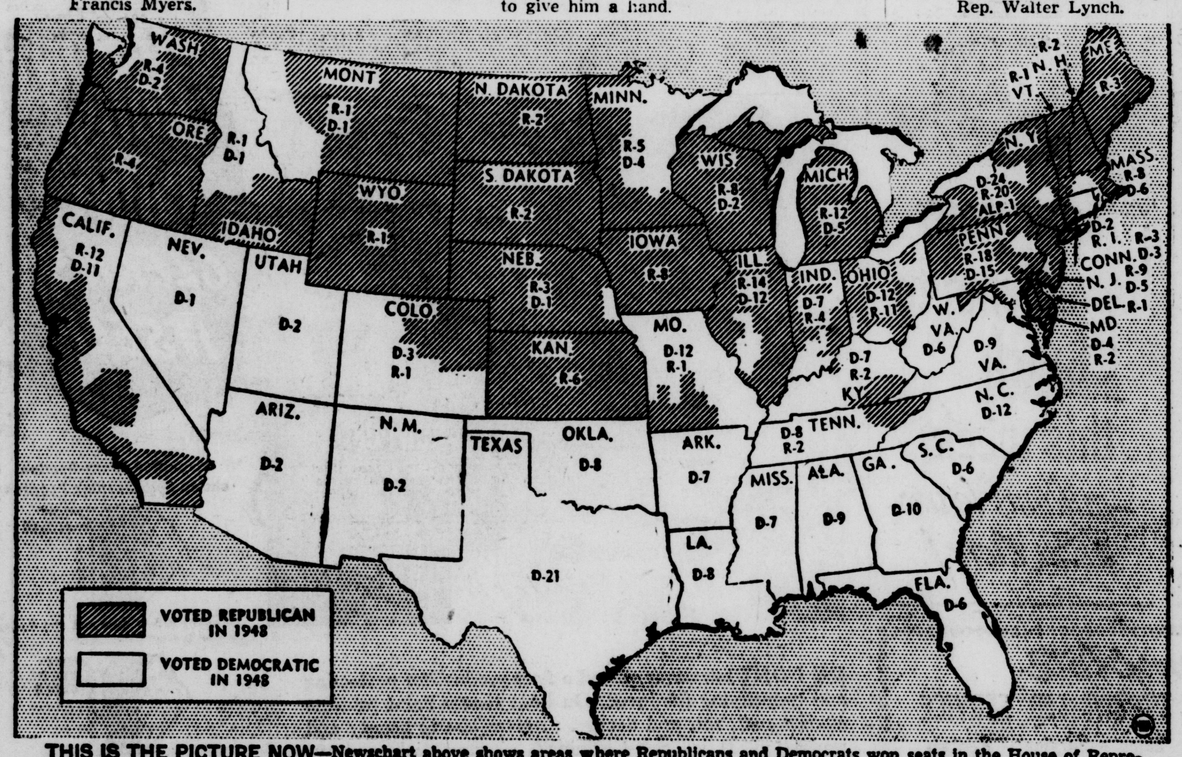

President Truman's Senate spokesman, Scott W. Lucas, faces a serious challenge from Republican nominee Everett Dirksen (left), who uses a wire recorder to communicate with down state supporters. Defeat of Lucas would be a serious blow to the "Fair Deal."

Hard-hitting Republican Gov. Jim Duff (top) asks voters to send him to the Senate. He's up against Senate Democratc whip Francis Myers.

Republican Gov. Earl Warren gesticulates as he talks up his bid for a third term. Both he and his Democratic opponent, Jimmy Roosevelt, are being mentioned as presidential possibilities in 1952. Jimmy is seen with his mother (inset) who came out to California to give him a hand.

Republican Gov. Tom Dewey (top) answers questions before TV cameras during campaign to ward off Democratic challenger Rep. Walter Lynch.

THIS IS THE PICTURE NOW—Newschart above shows areas where Republicans and Democrats won seats in the House of Representatives in 1948. On election eve, Dems hold 261 seats, Republicans hold 172. Political dopesters say Republicans stand to gain up to 30 seats in "see-saw" districts, which would make the map look a little darker. However, appearances can be deceiving: Michigan, for instance, looks to be solid GOP at first glance. But Michigan sent five congressmen to Washington in '48; all from the relatively small but crowded Detroit area.

WOODSTOCK NEWS

By RICHARD E. THIBAUT, JR.

Adds Two Members

Woodstock, Nov. 7—At the regular monthly meeting of the Woodstock Fire Company No. 1, at the fire hall Monday night two new members were voted into the organization. They were Oscar Lettel and Vernon Carl. The following members of the fire department attended the first session of the newly formed blood bank for Woodstock, at the Health Center, Monday night: Herbert G. Wyman, Robert Smith, Hudson Cramer, Jr., Roger Grazier and R. Cashdollar.

Plans Union Service

Woodstock, Nov. 7—There will be a special union service at the Dutch Reformed Church Sunday, Nov. 19, at 11 a. m., with the Methodist and Lutheran churches participating. The sermon will be given by the Rev. Olney E. Cook, who will be assisted by the Rev. Charles Wharton.

Sets Chest Clinic

Woodstock, Nov. 7—Miss Anne Cassidy, Ulster County Public Health Nurse, has announced that there will be a chest clinic Tuesday, Nov. 14, at the Health Center in Woodstock from 1 to 2:30 p. m. The unit from the Ulster County Tuberculosis Hospital in Kingston will be in attendance.

Village Notes

Woodstock, Nov. 7—Mr. and Mrs. Emmet Edwards left today for several weeks in Iowa. They will visit relatives in Iowa City, Ottumwa and Mt. Pleasant, returning home by way of Columbus, Washington, Baltimore and Philadelphia, where they will visit museums and galleries. Emmet Edwards, Jr., left Monday for New York.

Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Waters and their daughter, Phyllis were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Alpern last week-end.

Pete Carlson and Bob Cantine attended the Yale football game Saturday.

Mrs. Joseph Hutty returned to her home today from the Kingston Hospital.

Harry Dordick and his son, Webb are spending a few days in New York.

Review Is Given

Woodstock, Nov. 7—The following review of an exhibition of paintings currently at the Salpeter Gallery in New York appears in the Nov. 1 issue of the Art Digest: "Sunny to turbulent landscapes of such artist-favored country as Woodstock, Monhegan and Cape Cod make up a lively painting show by Alex Redein. Deep color and swift, slashing brushstrokes characterize many of the pictures, which show increased mastery of form since the artist's last exhibition. Strongly expressionist and well disciplined are two outstanding rock and sea pictures, "End of Summer" and "Monhegan, 1950." The exhibition will remain at the gallery to Nov. 11.

Ruellan Gets Medal

Woodstock, Nov. 7. — Andree Ruellan, one of America's foremost women painters, has been awarded the Dawson Memorial Medal "for distinction in painting or drawing of flowers or gardens" for her painting "October Still-Life" in the 1950 Water Color Exhibition of the Philadelphia Water Color Club at the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts. In addition to work by U. S. artists in 33 states, there are entries in the show from Belgium, Canada, China, Cuba, England, France, Holland, Italy, Norway and Sweden.

Halloween Parade Is Colorful Affair

Stone Ridge school children once again gave their Halloween parade this year in a gala procession which wound through village streets. The marchers, led by three children on horseback assembled at the school where costumes were judged by Mrs. Thomas Arra, Mrs. John Basten, Mrs. Frank Altieri, Mrs. Ray Willmott, and Mrs. Edward Larkin.

Outstanding choices of the judges were a devil on horseback; a bride and groom, with the bridal bouquet made from a pancake spade, dish mop, and various other kitchen utensils; a humorous elderly couple; and exceptionally original leaf costumes. Twenty prizes were awarded in all for beauty, originality and comedy.

During the parade, when marchers passed the Stone Ridge Manufacturing Co. employes gave each child candy bars or boxes of candy. Returning to the school the children were treated to games and refreshments, while the Cornish General Store presented them with ice cream.

Prize winners were: Lois Wagar, Gordon and Douglas Siemer, Herbert Christiana, Bill Stokes, James Ostrander, Barbara Davenport, Martha Hungerford, Catherine Badenbach, John Kuhlman, Eleanor Roosa, Rence Vandemark, Beverly Davenport, William Swarz, Vivian and Dolores Every, William Hasbrouck, Roy Hendricks, Philip Davenport, and Joan Stokes.

Shaky Majority Holds

London, Nov. 7 (AP)—Labor's shaky majority skinned through another test of strength in the House of Commons last night—defeating by 12 votes a Conservative motion of censure on its housing program. The vote was 300 to 288. It was the 61st vote in Commons since the general election last February left the Laborites with a narrow majority.

Butter off Ration List

Copenhagen, Denmark, Nov. 7 (AP)—Butter, which greased the skids under Denmark's last government, has been melted from the ration list by the new coalition regime. The eight-day-old government of Agarians and Conservatives yesterday de-rationed both butter and margarine for the first time in 10 years in this dairy industry land. The Socialist government of Hans Hedtoft fell Oct. 25 after a bitter debate over its policy of rationing butter to save as much as possible for foreign trade—mainly with Britain.

"Mr. (Midwestern) Republican" himself—Sen. Bob Taft—talks to guests at a party in his honor during a campaign to save his seat from State Auditor "Jumping Joe" Ferguson (bottom). As organized labor's No. 1 target, Taft is winding up the political fight of his life.

President Truman's Senate spokesman, Scott W. Lucas, faces a serious challenge from Republican nominee Everett Dirksen (left), who uses a wire recorder to communicate with down state supporters. Defeat of Lucas would be a serious blow to the "Fair Deal."

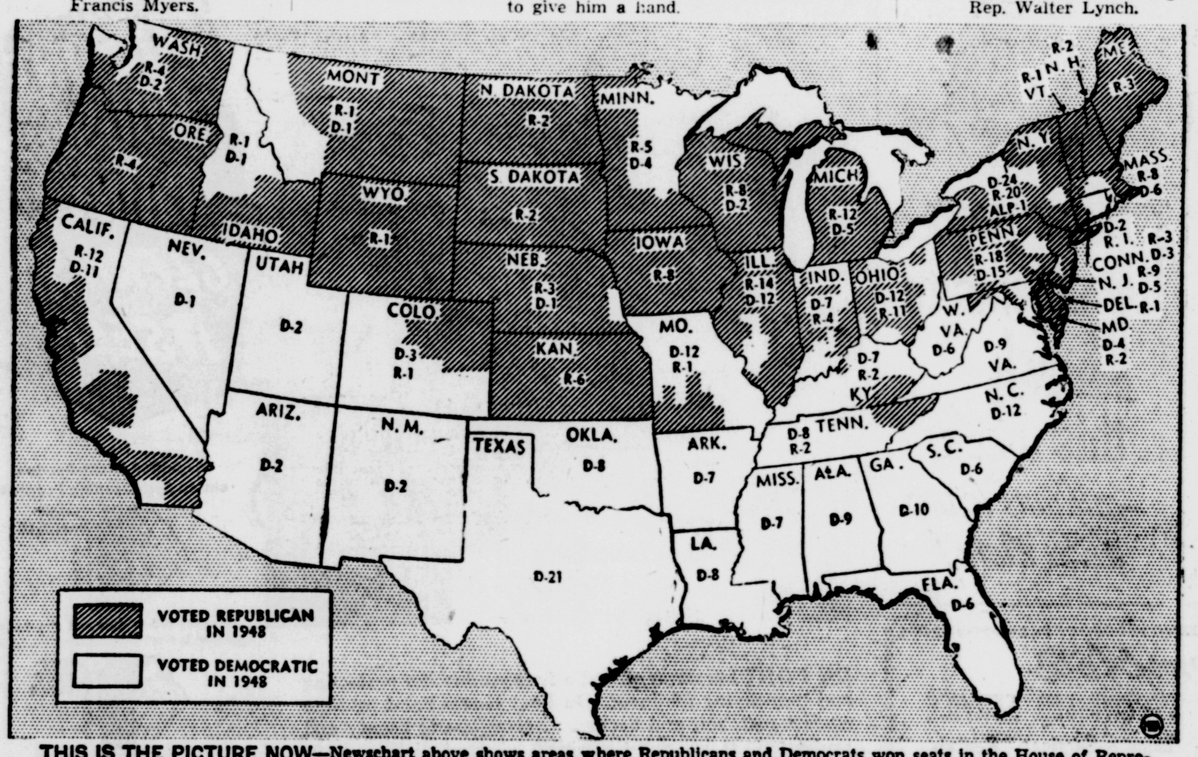

Hard-hitting Republican Gov. Jim Duff (top) asks voters to send him to the Senate. He's up against Senate Democratic whip Francis Myers.

Republican Gov. Earl Warren gesticulates as he talks up his bid for a third term. Both he and his Democratic opponent, Jimmy Roosevelt, are being mentioned as presidential possibilities in 1952. Jimmy is seen with his mother (inset) who came out to California to give him a hand.

Republican Gov. Tom Dewey (top) answers questions before TV cameras during campaign to ward off Democratic challenger Rep. Walter Lynch.

THIS IS THE PICTURE NOW—Newschart above shows areas where Republicans and Democrats won seats in the House of Representatives in 1948. On election eve, Dems hold 261 seats, Republicans hold 172. Political dopesters say Republicans stand to gain up to 30 seats in "see-saw" districts, which would make the map look a little darker. However, appearances can be deceiving: Michigan, for instance, looks to be solid GOP at first glance. But Michigan sent five congressmen to Washington in '48; all from the relatively small but crowded Detroit area.

Truck Upsets at Ulster Park

Headed south on Route 9W Monday a tractor-trailer loaded with building material left the highway and tipped over on the westerly side of the road north of the Barringer service station at Ulster Park. A large roadside sign board was damaged. The cargo on the truck was transferred to another vehicle and the truck righted. There were conflicting reports as to the cause of the accident, one report being the driver may have fallen asleep. Neither the state troopers nor sheriff's office had any information on the accident. (Freeman Photo) reported number of faster Russian-made jets.

It started over the Sinuiju area just across the Yalu river from Communist Manchuria when four Mustangs were jumped by the Red jets. In all, 16 Mustangs got into the dogfighting, the Fifth Air Force said. U. S. F-80 jets were called but arrived too late.

None of the American planes was damaged.

The Mustangs claimed hits on three of the Red jets which fled into Manchuria.

Four Russian-built jets were in the first attacking wave. They were described as MIG-15s, a late Russian model with sweptback wings and reported speed around 670 miles per hour.

The American jets operating in Korea, Lockheed F-80 Shooting Stars, are slower.

Has No Information

In Tokyo, MacArthur's headquarters said it had no information that North Koreans had been trained to fly jets.

Red forces in the Chongchon river bridgehead area north of Anju withdrew after the U. S. 24th Division counterattacked Monday. The doughboys regained ground lost in early morning enemy attacks.

South Korean patrols entered the deserted no-man's-land town of Won, northeast of Anju, Monday night. The ROKs reported there were no Red troops in the town but enemy forces occupied nearby hills.

Allied troops and artillery turned back several probing attacks Monday night and Tuesday north of Anju and northeast of Kunu. They were small scale.

Airmen spotted Red troops and supplies rolling south from the Yalu river on Manchuria's border to the fighting front.

But an expected full-scale attack by three to four Chinese and Korean Red divisions failed to develop.

Record Jersey Voting Set for Polls Today

Newark, N. J., Nov. 7 (AP)—More New Jerseyans registered to vote today than ever before in a non-presidential election.

And the day itself dawned bright and clear, the traditional signal for a big turnout at the polls, which are open from 7 a. m. to 8 p. m.

But what the record registration of 2,363,104 voters and the good weather means politically is anybody's guess.

Both the Republicans and the Democrats claim a big vote will help them.

The Republicans now hold nine of the 14 House of Representative seats to be filled today. The Democrats hold five. Both parties say they'll improve their representation in the House.

The main interest centers in the congressional elections because there are no statewide issues at stake today.

had been opened some time ago and at that time it was announced the Lane Construction Company was low bidder. However the usual preliminaries were necessary before the contract was awarded. All qualifications have been met by the low bidder and the formal awarding of the contract took place Monday.

This contract begins at the Saugerties end of the present Thruway and terminates near Lake Katrine. Since the Lane Company now has considerable equipment in this locality it is expected work will begin this fall and will be carried out throughout the winter months, weather permitting, and the work will be rushed to completion during the next summer season.

'Paltz Woman, Five Men Are Indicted For Illegal Still

New York, Nov. 7 (Special)—Josephine Galente of New Paltz and five New York men were indicted here Monday by a federal grand jury for operating an alleged illegal still on the Galente property, "Villa Galente," in November, 1948.

Indicted with the New Paltz woman were Frank and Vincent Nuccio, brothers, of 265 Elizabeth street, New York, Rosario Colletti, 26, of 196 Elizabeth street, New York, Philip Gambini, 24, of New York, and James Sbriglioni, 48, of 68 Fourth Place, Brooklyn.

The two Nuccio brothers are free in $1,500 bail each, while the other three men are free in $500 bail each. Josephine Galente, who has not been taken into custody yet, will be arraigned with the five men on Monday, Nov. 13, before Federal Judge John Clancy.

The five men were arrested in an early morning raid in New Paltz November 17, 1948, in which the alleged 500-gallon whisky still was reportedly seized. It was described by the police as the most elaborate ever found in that region.

According to federal officials, the still was in full operation in a barn on the Galente farm, about 200 yards from the New Paltz village line on Route 208. Police said they found 18,000 gallons of mash, 600 gallons of alcohol, a large quantity of sugar, two automobiles and a truck.

A second indictment had been handed up by the grand jury against Frank Nuccio in connection with two other still operations, at the Jodzequicz farm in Hamptonburg, and on the premises of the Superior Humus and Peet Corporation at Hyde Park, N. Y. Named with Nuccio and 12 others were his two other brothers, John and Salvatore Nuccio of Highland.

SHEDS DIRT...STAYS WHITE

Magnified Cross-Section shows Self-Cleaning Process

All paints collect dust and dirt during the first few months.

With Du Pont House Paint, a fine white powder forms on the surface after a few months.

Rains wash off this powder—and with it, much of the accumulated dirt and grime.

Self-Cleaning leaves surface clean and white . . . keeps it sparkling white for years. This cleaning process is gradual and does not adversely affect the long life of the paint.

DU PONT has never offered a finer product for protecting and beautifying the home! Du Pont House Paint protects against rust, rot, and decay . . . gives lasting beauty and protection. It is "Self-Cleaning". . . starts white, stays white, as explained, at right. While this "Self-Cleaning" process starts within a few months on most surfaces, excessive soot or heavy shade . . . or stains from metal surfaces such as screens . . . may interfere with or delay this process.

"Self-Cleaning" Du Pont House Paint is also available in a variety of popular tints. It saves repainting bills. Call on a reliable painter for your painting jobs . . . ask him to use Du Pont House Paint.

NEW! DU PONT HOUSE PAINT PRIMER
Especially formulated first-coater for bare wood and badly weathered painted surfaces. Provides excellent hiding and adhesion. Saves time and material.

Truck Upsets at Ulster Park

Headed south on Route 9W Monday a tractor-trailer loaded with building material left the highway and tipped over on the westerly side of the road north of the Barringer service station at Ulster Park. A large roadside sign board was damaged. The cargo on the truck was transferred to another vehicle and the truck righted. There were conflicting reports as to the cause of the accident, one report being the driver may have fallen asleep. Neither the state troopers nor sheriff's office had any information on the accident. (Freeman Photo) reported number of faster Russian-made jets.

It started over the Sinuiju area just across the Yalu river from Communist Manchuria when four Mustangs were jumped by the Red jets. In all, 16 Mustangs got into the dogfighting, the Fifth Air Force said. U. S. F-80 jets were called but arrived too late.

None of the American planes was damaged.

The Mustangs claimed hits on three of the Red jets which fled into Manchuria.

Four Russian-built jets were in the first attacking wave. They were described as MIG-15s, a late Russian model with sweptback wings and reported speed around 670 miles per hour.

The American jets operating in Korea, Lockheed F-80 Shooting Stars, are slower.

Has No Information

In Tokyo, MacArthur's headquarters said it had no information that North Koreans had been trained to fly jets.

Red forces in the Chongchon river bridgehead area north of Anju withdrew after the U. S. 24th Division counterattacked Monday. The doughboys regained ground lost in early morning enemy attacks.

South Korean patrols entered the deserted no-man's-land town of Won, northeast of Anju, Monday night. The ROKs reported there were no Red troops in the town but enemy forces occupied nearby hills.

Allied troops and artillery turned back several probing attacks Monday night and Tuesday north of Anju and northeast of Kunu. They were small scale.

Airmen spotted Red troops and supplies rolling south from the Yalu river on Manchuria's border to the fighting front.

But an expected full-scale attack by three to four Chinese and Korean Red divisions failed to develop.

"I'll be damned if I can figure this one," a First Corps staff officer complained.

Record Jersey Voting Set for Polls Today

Newark, N. J., Nov. 7 (AP)—More New Jerseyans registered to vote today than ever before in a non-presidential election.

And the day itself dawned bright and clear, the traditional signal for a big turnout at the polls, which are open from 7 a. m. to 8 p. m.

But what the record registration of 2,363,104 voters and the good weather means politically is anybody's guess.

Both the Republicans and the Democrats claim a big vote will help them.

The Republicans now hold nine of the 14 House of Representative seats to be filled today. The Democrats hold five. Both parties say they'll improve their representation in the House.

The main interest centers in the congressional elections because there are no statewide issues at stake today.

Lane Company Is

had been opened some time ago and at that time it was announced the Lane Construction Company was low bidder. However the usual preliminaries were necessary before the contract was awarded. All qualifications have been met by the low bidder and the formal awarding of the contract took place Monday.

This contract begins at the Saugerties end of the present Thruway and terminates near Lake Katrine. Since the Lane Company now has considerable equipment in this locality it is expected work will begin this fall and will be carried out throughout the winter months, weather permitting, and the work will be rushed to completion during the next summer season.

'Paltz Woman, Five Men Are Indicted For Illegal Still

New York, Nov. 7 (Special)—Josephine Galente of New Paltz and five New York men were indicted here Monday by a federal grand jury for operating an alleged illegal still on the Galente property, "Villa Galente," in November, 1948.

Indicted with the New Paltz woman were Frank and Vincent Nuccio, brothers, of 265 Elizabeth street, New York, Rosario Colletti, 26, of 196 Elizabeth street, New York, Philip Gambini, 24, of New York, and James Sbriglioni, 48, of 68 Fourth Place, Brooklyn.

The two Nuccio brothers are free in $1,500 bail each, while the other three men are free in $500 bail each. Josephine Galente, who has not been taken into custody yet, will be arraigned with the five men on Monday, Nov. 13, before Federal Judge John Clancy.

The five men were arrested in an early morning raid in New Paltz November 17, 1948, in which the alleged 500-gallon whisky still was reportedly seized. It was described by the police as the most elaborate ever found in that region.

According to federal officials, the still was in full operation in a barn on the Galente farm, about 200 yards from the New Paltz village line on Route 208. Police said they found 18,000 gallons of mash, 600 gallons of alcohol, a large quantity of sugar, two automobiles and a truck.

A second indictment had been handed up by the grand jury against Frank Nuccio in connection with two other still operations, at the Jodzequicz farm in Hamptonburg, and on the premises of the Superior Humus and Peet Corporation at Hyde Park, N. Y. Named with Nuccio and 12 others were his two other brothers, John and Salvatore Nuccio of Highland.

A single silkworm may spin 400 to 1,000 yards of filament.
